... Amnesty Decision Delayed

WASHINGTON (AP) — The backlash of President Ford's unconditional pardon of Richard M. Nixon hit the White House Monday, abruptly ending the political tranquility that marked the President's first month in office.

The White House said its switchboard still was swamped with telephone calls more than 24 hours after Ford's announcement, with the early 2½ to 1 disapproval rate leveling to 50-50.

Ford was greeted with a spattering of protest signs and boos enroute to a speech in Pittsburgh. In Washington, Democratic senators took the Senate floor to denounce the pardon decision.

The No. 3 man in the office of the Special Watergate Prosecutor's office, counsel Philip Lacovara, resigned, saying "recent developments" hastened his departure, and the foreman of the Watergate cover-up grand jury said reactions Skien, Norway (AP) — Twelve first editions of Henrick Ibsen's works were stolen from the "Ibsen House" in the town of Skien, the Norwegian radio reported.

among the jurors is "disappointment, dismay and outrage."

The foreman, Vladimir Pregelj, said "due process of law should have taken its course." The grand jury is the one that voted last February to name the former president an indicted co-conspirator.

Sen. Sam J. Ervin Jr., D-N.C., whose Senate Watergate Committee delved deeply into the Watergate affair a year ago, called the pardon "inexpedient, incompatible with good government (and) a bad precedent for the future."

Enroute back from the Pittsburgh speech, a White House spokesman said the in-house activities that led to Ford's dramatic announcement Sunday had occupied so much of the President's time that he had to postpone a decision on conditional amnesty for Vietnam-era deserters and draft resisters.

The announcement had been promised for Tuesday, but Deputy Press Secretary John W. Hushen said it was "indefinitely postponed because he (Ford) hasn't had time to come to grips with it."

Asked whether the Nixon pardon was considered more important, Hushen replied: "That seems to be a conclusion you could draw because he announced one before the other."

In Pittsburgh, speaking to delegates at an international transportation conference, Ford made no reference to the Nixon pardon or the controversy it sparked.

But Hushen said the President had heard the booing that greeted him outside the conference hotel.

Hushen said the President learned of the adverse calls directly Sunday when he asked a White House switchboard operator about the reaction.

"Very heavy, and kind of unfavorable," Hushen said the President was told.

The White House switchboard logged 3,000 calls through Sunday night.

Western Union said 24,000 telegrams and mailgrams were sent to the White House after the Ford announcement. A spokesman said this was about six times the normal daily volume.

There were only about a dozen pickets among about 500 people who awaited Ford as he stepped from his limousine at the transportation conference.

They carried signs proclaiming "The Honeymoon is over," "OK, Jerry: now Pardon War Resisters," "Justice died," and "Why not pardon all."

As Ford left the hotel some young protesters chanted "no more cover-up," and "prosecute Nixon."

The criticism on the Senate floor was tempered by some approving statements.

Ervin said the pardon continues the cover-up operation, instead of relegating it to the past, adding:

"The pardon makes it certain that the Watergate affair and President Ford's effort to exempt Mr. Nixon from legal responsibility for it will be injected into the next presidential campaign."

Sen. Gaylord Nelson, D-Wis., said the action "was certainly premature" although a pardon at some future date might have been appropriate.

A Republican, Sen. Strom Thurmond of South Carolina, said however it was "proper and in the interests of the country."

Republican Whip Robert P. Griffin, defending Ford's action said one of the most important factors was Nixon's health and one of the most legitimate reasons for the exercise of pardon power

Exon Blasts Butz' 'Nit-Picking'

By The Associated Press
A bluntness he traditionally saves for battering bureaucracy, Gov. J. James Exon said "hogwash" and "nit-picking" were behind delays in Farmers Home Administration (FHA) disaster loans for 40 Nebraska counties.

Exon also said FHA officials, an aide to Sen. Carl Curtis and a Nebraska congressman were wrong when they said loan applications did not contain required letters from community bankers, certifying need for the loans.

In an interview, Exon also sailed into Agriculture Secretary Earl Butz, contending previous Ag Department policies regarding such loans "prove that this is just a lot of nit-picking and it's causing serious trouble."

He also questioned whether the program was properly funded to provide the loans.

"I've had time to check on this since last week, and those applications, almost all of them, contained the necessary letters," Exon said.

However, they did not contain language specific enough to suit Butz, Exon said.

"That is just plain nit-picking and his previous actions prove it," Exon said. He noted the state had no trouble getting loans several months ago, to compensate for hail damage to crops. "Those applications had the same kinds of letters, and that program is administered under the same law," Exon said.

He said Don Shasteen, an aide to Sen. Carl Curtis, was wrong in saying the law requires the specificity in the letters apparently sought by Butz.

"That is a matter of rules and regulations promulgated by his (Butz) department," Exon said.

Ken Riblett, head of FHA farmers programs for Nebraska, said Exon was right about the regulations.

Riblett said when the hail damage loans were sought, letters comparable to those forwarded for the drought loans were used.

Riblett said he could only speculate that Butz felt that "these requests (for drought loans) were very broad and that more information was needed; he can do that under the regulations."

"It was our thought that the loans could be approved with the letters that were sent in," Riblett said.

Earlier, FHA officials indicated applications were forwarded with no letters.

Exon also said he had received a letter from 1st District Rep. John Y. McCollister of Omaha, saying the law required the more specific letters.

"That's just hogwash," Exon said.

White, Police Clashes Spread In Mozambique

LOURENCO MARQUES, Mozambique (AP) — Whites bent on keeping blacks from taking power in Mozambique clashed with Portuguese security forces on Monday in the key port of Beira. It was the first significant spread of the white-led upsurge from Lourenco Marques, the capital.

Senior Portuguese Army officials reported 17 injured but no deaths after riot police and troops fought with a mob of 2,000 whites. Some reports said several persons were injured by shrapnel from hand grenades thrown into a crowd.

There were conflicting reports of a reported incident at the Beira radio station. The South African Broadcasting Corp. said 28 civilians and two soldiers were killed during an assault on the station, but the South African Press Association said its correspondent in the port city gave no credence to the report.

Rebel whites already control the radio station in Lourenco Marques, its airport, central post office and an oil refinery on the city's outskirts. Portuguese troops have been ordered to move on the city to restore order, and two Portuguese officials from Lisbon have arrived in the territorial capital to negotiate with the rebels.

Two whites and an African were reported killed in an incident near the airport on Sunday.

Portuguese officials reported "extreme tension" in the black quarters of Lourenco Marques. They insisted they were dealing "with a disturbance, not an insurrection."

But Samora Machel, head of the black guerrilla movement Frelimo, demanded that Portuguese armed forces go into immediate action against "these white reactionaries and hoodlums representing international imperialism."

Frelimo and Portugal signed an agreement over the weekend calling for an immediate end to the war, stipulating that Portugal would grant Mozambique independence next year, and that a Frelimo-dominated government would rule until then.

Joint units of the Portuguese army and the Frelimo guerrillas were reported checking trains coming into Mozambique from Malawi for white volunteers answering appeals broadcast by the white rebels in Lourenco Marques.

Tough white mercenaries from neighboring South Africa were also reported considering a drive into Mozambique to help the white rebels.

The report on the mercenaries came from the Johannesburg Star, which said the men who once fought in the Congo in the 1960s were "gathering in Johannesburg and indications are they may be recruiting for a push into Mozambique."

The paper said that several senior mercenary officers held a private meeting at a hotel in the South African capital Saturday. One of them confirmed the session took place, but called it a social gathering.

Dyas Says Thone Should Refuse Aid

By BOB GUENTHER
Star Staff Writer

Hess Dyas, the Democrats' First Congressional District candidate, said incumbent Rep. Charles Thone will violate a campaign promise if he accepts any of Sen. Carl Curtis' left-over campaign funds.

Curtis has announced he will offer some of the $31,000 surplus from his 1972 campaign to the three GOP candidates or Congress, including Thone, and to the governor-lieutenant governor candidates.

"It is inconceivable to me that Thone would accept any of those funds," Dyas said.

Thone pledged early in his campaign that he would accept money solely from individuals, the Republican State Finance Committee and the Nebraska Republican Congressional Committee.

As of yet, Curtis has not actually offered Thone the money, and Thone has not said whether he will accept it.

Dyas said the Curtis money will bring with it the "special interests" that contributed to Curtis. Curtis, Dyas said, received more of his contributions from interests outside Nebraska than within the state.

A quick run-down of Curtis' 1972 campaign contribution report shows money from Colt Industries, the American Dental Political Action Committee, the Meredith Corp. and the Nebraska Committee to Re-elect the President.

Dyas said "to a certain extent" the Curtis dollars will bring with them the special interests which he said Thone rejected by "making a big deal" about limiting the sources of his contributions and their amounts.

"Carl Curtis was certainly not on his original list of contributors," Dyas said. "If (Thone) accepts it, he's going to have to make some amendments to his original statement."

"I'm not talking about an illegality. I'm talking about breaking his own rules," he said.

Dyas concluded, "My question is, Is Charles Thone going to accept this money and alter his pledge? This question deserves a response on his part."

A spokesman for Thone said he was campaigning in Norfolk Monday and could not be reached.

Mayor's Salary Question On Ballot

By LYNN ZERSCHLING
Star Staff Writer

When Lincolinites go to the polls Nov. 5, they will have a chance to repeal a charter provision requiring the mayor to receive a bigger salary than any of his department heads.

That proposal will be submitted to the voters along with three other amendments as a result of City Council action Monday. The three other amendments deal with financing.

Councilman Max Denney withdrew a fifth proposal which would have required the city-county Comprehensive Plan to be adopted by the City Council, not the planning commission. He withdrew the motion after his colleagues indicated they preferred seeking a change in the state law prior to taking a vote of the people.

Commission Recommendation

The proposed amendment dealing with the mayor's salary was recommended by the Charter Revision Commission.

That provision has caused a bunching up of top department heads' salaries at a level just below the mayor's. The mayor is paid $26,875.

The lawmakers rejected the commission's proposal which called for the council to set a minimum salary prior to each mayoral election.

Mayor's Salary Fixed

Instead, the council directed that prior to each term, the mayor's salary be fixed. The wage would not be subject to change during the term. Councilwoman Helen Boosalis contended that such an action would completely remove the mayor's salary as a possible political issue.

Elaine Hammer, president of the League of Women Voters, testified that the league has long supported a strong mayor form of government as now exists and said that an adequate salary is one measure of a mayor's effectiveness.

Denney lobbied to have the Comprehensive Plan proposal placed on the November ballot on the grounds that state legislators would be more willing to amend the state law if Lincoln voters had approved the proposal.

Lincoln Only City

He said Lincoln, as the state's only primary class city, is the only city in Nebraska where elected officials are not required to adopt the Comprehensive Plan.

Charter Revision Commission Chairman Karl Dickinson reported his group will consider the proposal and hold a public hearing on it.

The three other amendments which will be on the ballot would:

— remove the 8% interest rate ceiling on special assessment revolving fund bonds and allow that interest rate to be determined by the council prior to the issuance of such bonds.

— remove the interest rate ceiling on unpaid special assessment installments and allow the council to set the rates.

— remove the 7% interest ceiling on revenue bonds and allow the council to set the rates prior to the issuance of such bonds.

4 Face Charges In Bank Robbery

Omaha (AP) — Federal charges of bank robbery and assault were filed Monday against four Fremont-area men accused of Friday's armed robbery of the State Bank of Colon.

U.S. Magistrate Richard C. Peck set bonds of $20,000 for each and they were taken to the Douglas County jail.

Each was charged with three counts relating to the robbery and one count of assault on three bank tellers.

Two of the suspects were arrested by Saunders County deputies just hours after the pickup, while the other two were apprehended at a Fremont residence Saturday evening.

Because the robbery violates federal statutes, all four suspects were turned over to the FBI, and were transported to the Douglas County Jail here.

About $1,100 was taken in the holdup, but the money was recovered in a field near Fremont.

The suspects are identified as William G. Everitt, 24, and Donald E. Palmer, 20, both of Fremont; Clarence R. Thurlow, 22, of Cedar Bluffs and Randy Jacobsen, 23, originally from Wisner, but who police said has resided in Fremont for some time.

Revision Of Copyright Law Approved, 70-1, By Senate

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate rejected a move to have use royalties paid to recording artists and record manufacturers and then passed on Monday a bill that would significantly revise U.S. copyright law.

The vote was 70-1.

Kept in the bill was a controversial section permitting cable television systems to pick up distant sports programs for relay to their subscribers.

The measure now goes to the House, which is not expected to act on it this year.

The legislation is designed to bring about the first general updating of copyright law since 1909, in the light of advances in technology in communications and other fields.

One major provision would extend copyright protection to the life of the holder, plus 50 years. The maximum term of a copyright now is 56 years.

The section to require broadcasters, jukebox operators and other commercial users of sound recordings to pay royalties to performing artists and record companies was deleted by a 67-8 vote.

The royalties would have been in addition to those now paid to composers and music publishers. Opponents argued the payments would be a wind-fall for performers and record companies who benefit from the airing of their records by broadcasters.

The Senate tabled, 36-34, an amendment by Sen. Philip A. Hart, D-Mich., to strike out a section permitting cable-TV carriage of broadcast sports events and substitute regulation by the Federal Communications Commission.

The president of the National Cable Television Association, David Foster, said the organization was particularly pleased with the rejection of the sports-blackout amendment, calling it

Tape Detectives Told Not To Talk Yet

Washington (AP) — The six experts who did the detective work on 18½ minutes of erased White House Watergate tape have been dismissed with thanks and an admonition not to talk — for a while.

The team's six-months effort discovered the how of the erasure but not the who. The why can only be guessed at.

U. S. District Judge John J. Sirica, advising the panelists of their release, said they were under no further restrictions of silence.

"However, for the sake of caution," he wrote each man, "the court urges that you refrain from public comment about the panel's work until after a jury has been sequestered in the Watergate cover-up case."

Sirica will preside over that trial, expected to begin Sept. 30.

The gap was in the first tapes subpoenaed from the recorded conversations of then President Richard M. Nixon with his aides.

The panelists were Dr. Richard H. Bolt, a former professor of physics at MIT; Franklin S. Cooper of the University of Connecticut; James L. Flanagan of Bell Laboratories; John G. McKnight, consultant to the Dictaphone Corp.; Thomas G. Stockham of the University of Utah, and Mark R. Weiss, vice president of a New York acoustics research firm.

Bolt, reached at his office in Cambridge, said he would not talk about the tape until a jury is sequestered.

"I would imagine that all of us would refrain from comment," he said. "However, we all look forward to the time when we are able to talk freely."

They had been selected jointly last November by the Nixon White House and the Watergate special prosecutor to check the authenticity of the tapes.

But by the time they first met on Nov. 21, Nixon counsel J. Fred Buzhardt had told the court he and a colleague "discovered that approximately 18 minutes on one of the tapes of June 20, 1972 contained a tone and no conversation."

That conversation, taking place three days after the Watergate break-in, was between Nixon and his chief of staff, H. R. Haldeman.

The experts issued a final report on June 4, saying the erasure was done by hand and included at least five and perhaps as many as nine separate and contiguous erasures.

It was, one of the experts explained, as if someone had erased a portion, played it back to make sure the wipe-out was complete, and then went on to the next segment.

"This report draws no inferences about such questions as whether the erasure and buzz were made accidentally or intentionally, or when, or by what person or persons," the report said.

But it said it was clear they were made on the recorder used by Nixon's personal secretary, Rose Mary Woods. Testimony at days of hearings produced evidence that Miss Woods was one of five people handling the tape. One of the other four was Nixon himself.

Miss Woods said she was transcribing the Haldeman conversation when her telephone rang. She said she took off her earphones, reached for the stop button with her right hand but hit the record-erase button instead. In the 45 minutes she was on the telephone, Miss Woods said, she must have kept her foot on the start pedal. She had no explanation for the other 13 minutes of erasure.

An estimate was made some time ago that the study of the 86 feet of tape cost about $100,000.

Hushen In

John W. Hushen has become acting press secretary at the White House. He succeeds, at least temporarily, Jerald F. TerHorst who resigned in protest over President Ford's pardoning of former President Richard M. Nixon. TerHorst returned to work for the Detroit News as a national columnist.

Nixon Plans To Resign From Bar

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — Former President Richard M. Nixon, faced with possible disciplinary action by the state bar of California, plans to resign his bar membership shortly, his attorney said Monday.

Los Angeles attorney Dean Butler denied that the resignation was designed to avoid possible disbarment.

"It is a decision he made some time ago that he would not engage in the practice of law," Butler told a news conference at the state bar convention.

Counsel To Jaworski Speeds Up Departure

WASHINGTON (AP) — One of the chief aides to Special Watergate Prosecutor Leon Jaworski resigned Monday, saying "recent developments have made it appropriate" to hasten his planned departure.

The resignation of Philip A. Lacovara, counsel to Jaworski and third in rank at the prosecutor's office, followed by a day the announcement that Richard M. Nixon had been pardoned for all federal offenses committed during his presidency.

Spokesmen for Jaworski would not elaborate on the two sentence statement announcing the resignation, especially on whether the "recent developments" meant Lacovara was unhappy with the pardon.

Lacovara has been described as "the lawyer's lawyer" at the prosecutor's office, handling all legal questions for Jaworski. He took part in all the various investigations conducted at the office.

The resignation contained in a letter to Jaworski was described as a "warm personal exchange" and a spokesman said the prosecutor's reply will be equally warm. The resignation is effective Sept. 29.

Lacovara appeared in court during numerous hearings and at some of the trials, but seldom examined witnesses.

He did, however, handle cases for the prosecution before various appellate courts and conducted the rebuttal argument in the tapes case before the Supreme Court.

Before coming to the prosecutor's office, Lacovara was deputy solicitor general of the United States for one year, responsible for supervising all federal criminal cases in the Supreme Court.

Prior to that he had served as special counsel to New York City police commissioner Patrick V. Murphy.

The resignation is the second in four days at the prosecutor's office. William H. Merrill, chief government lawyer at the plumbers trial of John D. Ehrlichman and three others, left Friday to return to private practice.

The announcement of Lacovara's leaving said: "Philip A. Lacovara submitted his resignation as counsel to the special prosecutor today. Mr. Lacovara explained that recent developments have made it appropriate for him to accelerate his plans to leave the special prosecutor's office and to enter the private practice of law."

Mondale Warns Of 'Ultimate Cover-Up'

Washington (UPI) — Warning that the "ultimate cover-up" of Watergate may be taking place, Sen. Walter Mondale, D-Minn., said Monday a Senate committee should subpoena all of former President Richard Nixon's tapes and documents that might be related to the scandal.

Mondale said the government operations committee ought to take possession of the materials "to establish the right of access to such materials and to guarantee their preservation."

"The ultimate cover-up of Watergate may be taking place" because of a government decision to turn the tapes and documents over to Nixon, Mondale said in a letter to Sen. Sam J. Ervin, D-N.C., the committee chairman.

Mondale said the public should not be denied the full story of Watergate and that Ervin's committee should "determine the best way . . . to examine the material in order to accomplish full disclosure."

He said the committee also should investigate the propriety of the General Services Administration's agreement to maintain joint access to the material with the former president, questioning "whether it was in the best interest of the nation for any agency . . . to enter into such a contract."

Senate Republican leader Hugh Scott, meanwhile, said that all information in the possession of the government concerning Nixon's personal involvement in the scandals "should be released to the public."

Scott said such materials should include— but not be limited to — the White House tapes, documents and memoranda, grand jury transcripts and any information gathered by Watergate Special Prosecutor Leon Jaworski.

"In the interest of ending the continuing controversy, Mr. Nixon's full role in Watergate should be revealed to the American people," Scott said. He said such a move would allow the public to then judge Ford's decision to pardon Nixon.

'In Response To Pardon Of Nixon' . . . Judge Frees Two Prisoners

Grand Forks, N.D. (AP) — A Grand Forks county judge, saying he was acting in response to the pardon of former President Richard M. Nixon, freed two prisoners Monday he had sentenced to jail.

"In response to the pardon given Richard Nixon by Gerald Ford, this court is determined to present and act of clemency to any and all prisoners serving jail sentences for convictions in this court for the commission of any criminal offenses," Judge Kirk Smith said in open court. "It is the intention of this court to commute any unserved jail time and unpaid fines in the above cases and they are therefore set free."

Judge Smith freed John L. Smith, 29, Marvel, from Grand Forks County Jail with 50 days remaining in a 75-day sentence for driving under the influence of alcohol and failing to appear in court. He also dismissed a $225 fine.

The judge also released John M. Kleinsasser, 20, Grand Forks, from jail. He was serving 15 days for a traffic charge and had three more days left.

Smith said he took the action as his personal response to the Ford action. "not in agreement or as an opposition."

"I did it for the sake of prisoners who were sitting up in the jail wondering why they were there," the judge said.

Kleinsasser said he felt "real good." Smith said "it's lucky for us there's good old President Ford."

Judge Smith, 44, has been on the Grand Forks county bench for 11 years.

Ford To Pay 3-Day Visit To Japan

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford will visit Japan for three days beginning Nov. 19, the White House announced Monday.

Mrs. Ford will accompany the President on the trip to the Far East at the invitation of the Tokyo government.

The White House said in a statement that the itinerary and other details will be worked out in discussions to be held between the two governments.

The invitation to Ford to visit Japan had been announced previously and the President had accepted, saying he would visit the nation before year's end.

A similar invitation had been extended to former President Richard M. Nixon.

The White House did not in-ducate whether Ford would stop elsewhere en route.

The trip is expected to be Ford's first foreign journey as President.

Ford is expected to be accompanied by Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger.

The trip will mark the first time an American president has visited Japan.

Kennedy Booed, Splattered By Tomato

BUSING PROTESTERS . . . boo Sen. Edward Kennedy in Boston.

BOSTON (AP) — Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, was booed off a stage and splattered with a tomato Monday when he tried to address an angry crowd of anti-busing demonstrators.

The gathering in the plaza outside the John F. Kennedy Federal Building had been called to protest a court-ordered busing program scheduled to begin when Boston schools open on Thursday. The program involves 18,200 pupils — 8,500 whites and 9,700 blacks.

Kennedy said he was disappointed that he had not been able to speak. But the Massachusetts Democrat said he had been subjected to worse abuse during antiwar demonstrations.

A crowd estimated by police at 8,000 to 10,000 persons shouted insults, chanted "Impeach Kennedy" and sang "Godless America" when Kennedy stepped to the microphone.

As Kennedy and his aides climbed down from the platform and walked briskly around the edge of the crowd, several women leaped in front of him and shook their fists. At least one struck him on the shoulder.

Two tomatoes were thrown and one hit someone near Kennedy, splattering the senator as he walked quickly into the federal building where he has his offices.

The demonstrators pounded their fists on the building's windows, threw eggs and smashed a 10-foot-long pane of plate glass.

Kennedy, who says he favors peaceful integration, had been identified by speakers at the rally as a proponent of busing.

"People feel very strongly about this," he said. "They're entitled to their views."

He said he could not speak at the rally, because the plug to his microphone had been pulled out.

The demonstrators — most of them women and virtually all of them white — marched to the federal building from Boston Common. They stopped in front of the office of U.S. District Court Judge W. Arthur Garrity, who ordered the busing plan, and shouted, "Garrity must go."

Many white parents have vowed to keep their children out of school for at least two weeks to protest the busing. Some said they hoped this would make officials rescind the program.

Kennedy said he hoped the emotion shown by busing opponents will dissipate before school opened.

"I am not confident that it will," he said. "There are still voices in the community stirring up hatred among the races."

Boston Mayor Kevin H. White went on television Monday night to appeal to parents to keep the city from being "polarized by race or paralyzed by fear" during the opening of schools.

Element 106 Discovered

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — The discovery of a new element — with a life of less than a second and no name yet other than Element 106 — was announced here Monday by Scientists from the Lawrence Berkeley Laboratory in California.

The scientists, Dr. Glenn T. Seaborg and Dr. Albert Ghiorso, said evidence of the discovery was conclusive. A recent Russian claim of finding the same element lacked firm evidence, they said. The American scientists, who have participated in the discovery of several elements, said they had confirmed the existence of Element 106 by precisely identifying the particles it gives off during its brief existence.

The discovery "increases the knowledge of nuclear structure," said Dr. Seaborg, a former chairman of the Atomic Energy Commission and a 1951 Nobel Prize winner. "It adds one more piece to the jigsaw puzzle" of understanding nature, he said.

As research continues, scientists will examine the chemical properties of Element 106 and can use it to investigate the behavior of electrons in terms of the theory of relativity.

An element is a form of matter that cannot be further broken down to simpler forms by any ordinary means. Each has its own chemical characteristics. They are listed in a form called the periodic table with elements of similar properties. Element 106 is placed under tungsten.

Scientists from Russia's Joint Institute for Nuclear Research at Dubna visited the California laboratory last month and reported observing some fissioning atomic nuclei they believed to be element 106.

"They hardly even know the half-life," said Dr. Ghiorso. The half-life is the time an element exists. "There is a possibility they are right. We hope they are right. The probability in my mind is that they are not."

Because of questions about the Soviet work, the American scientists said they have not given the new element a name. It is customary for persons discovering new elements to name them.

Dr. Seaborg and Dr. Ghiorso said researchers at the Berkeley, Calif., laboratory had identified the decay or "daughter" particles given off by Element 106 and the particles given off by the decay particles themselves, the "granddaughter particles."

Element 106 ends its brief existence — a half-life of nine-tenths of a second, the time it takes for half the substance to decay — by giving off an Alpha particle and turning into an isotope, a similar atom, of Element 104.

Antitrust Action To Be Pursued In Inflation Fight, Congress Told

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Justice Department will use antitrust action against some industries in the fight against inflation, Congress was told Monday.

Thomas E. Kauper, head of the department's antitrust division, said action to halt anticompetitive practices and price-fixing conspiracies would be a major step toward reducing inflationary pressures.

In his appearance before the Joint Economic Committee,

Kauper did not identify companies that might be subject to antitrust action. But he said the action would be taken not only against such national industries as steel and autos but also against local concerns.

Kauper said service industries, which account for 40 per cent of the gross national product, will be given particular scrutiny on both national and local levels.

"When prices for these services are raised to artificial and competitive levels the consumer is directly affected," he said.

He said the various sections of the antitrust division will be ordered to canvass the competitive performance and prices of important industries.

Grand jury investigations will be opened where appropriate, he said.

He said economists will assist the Justice Department in pinpointing industries in which particular price levels suggest the existence of anticompetitive conduct.

The department also will step up investigation "which might ultimately result in structural change in a particular industry," Kauper said.

Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., vice chairman of the committee, noted that since 1973, prices charged by a number of concentrated industries — among them oil, steel, and chemicals — have soared as high as 80 per cent. That is far higher than the national inflation rate of about 12 per cent.

Nursing Home Blaze Kills 7 In St. Joseph

ST. JOSEPH, Mo. (AP) — Fire swept through a nursing home full of elderly women early Monday, killing six women and the 11-year-old son of the home's owners, police said.

Five persons survived the blaze, including the owners and an employee. Two survivors were uninjured, two were treated for smoke inhalation and the other was hospitalized with second-degree burns.

Fire Chief Cloyd Campbell said the fire, which broke out shortly after midnight, was a "roaring inferno." An assistant fire chief said, "The whole sky was red when we arrived."

The building was completely gutted. Officials said the cause had not been determined Monday afternoon and that the state fire marshal and fire department inspectors had been called in to investigate.

State Department Stands By Denials On Chile

WASHINGTON (AP) — The State Department, accused of misleading a Senate panel, stood by its congressional testimony Monday that there was no U.S. attempt to interfere with Chile's internal politics.

The dispute arose with reports that the director of the Central Intelligence Agency told Congress the Nixon administration authorized funds for cover CIA activities designed to make it impossible for President Salvador Allende to govern.

William E. Colby, the head of the CIA, reportedly said more than $8 billion was authorized for the agency between 1970 and 1973.

A number of high State Department officials testified under oath at a Senate Foreign Relations subcommittee hearing that there was no attempt to interfere. Similar disclaimers were made at the State Department itself.

"We stand by the statements made here in the past," said spokesman Robert Anderson. "And with regard to the testimony on the Hill given by Mr. Shlauderman, Mr. Meyer and others, we stand by that."

Harry W. Shlauderman, a deputy assistant secretary for inter-American affairs, said in a statement last June that "despite pressures to the contrary the United States government adhered to a policy of non-intervention in Chile's internal affairs during the Allende period. That policy remains in force today."

Charles A. Meyer, former assistant secretary for Latin America, testified that the United States scrupulously adhered to a policy of non-intervention. "We bought no votes, we funded no candidates, we promoted no coups," he said.

Spokesman Anderson told newsmen that "if any allegations are presented to us we'll review the testimony."

The Allende government was which Allende died a year ago Wednesday.

The subcommittee's chief counsel, Jerome I. Levinson, told a reporter that "the words used by Mr. Meyer and Mr. Korry were artful in terms of dodging, but in substance and spirit the intent was to deceive the subcommittee."

Levinson said that when the chairman, Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, returns from meetings with home state voters, he and the four other subcommittee members will take up whether to reopen the hearings.

He said that "in my mind there isn't any doubt we were misled."

Edward M. Korry, former ambassador to Chile, declared under oath that "the United States did not seek to pressure, subvert, influence, a single member of the Chilean congress at any time in the entire four years of my stay."

Colby maintained all of the CIA operations against the Allende government were approved in advance by the 40 Committee in Washington, a secret high-level intelligence panel headed by Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger.

Spokesman Anderson said he would not "address myself to the substance" of the published reports of Colby's testimony. But he went on to point out that the 40 Committee also has as members the undersecretary of state for political affairs, the deputy secretary of defense, the chairman, the Joint Chiefs of Staff and the director of the CIA.

Commodities Regulation Expansion OKd By Senate

Washington (AP) — The Senate passed a bill Monday to expand sharply federal regulation of commodity futures trading, sometimes blamed for high grocery bills.

In addition to basic farm commodities, the bill would bring under federal scrutiny trading for future delivery of such items as coffee, sugar, cocoa, lumber, gold and silver bullion, foreign currencies and bulk silver and gold coins.

Passed by voice vote, the bill now goes to a conference with the House which passed a less comprehensive measure in April.

The volume of commodities futures trading rose last year to $520 billion, substantially exceeding the value of securities transactions on various U.S. stock exchanges.

The Senate bill would establish an independent five-member commission to impose regulations on commodity futures markets, designed to insure their proper operation and guard against manipulation.

Know Your P's and Q's About Plate Collecting?

WANTED: One rare, gilt-edge plate in pure white translucent china—hand-painted with a garland of wild roses. You find this prize plate in a jungle of antiques at a garage sale and buy it for $10.

THE YEAR is 1979. An eager collector wants to buy your wild rose plate for $395! If you sell it, you suddenly make $385, because you knew how to spot a "sleeper" with true artistic worth and rarity.

FICTION? Not altogether. Today, many average people with only average incomes make money buying and selling collector's plates while they enjoy one of the most fascinating of all hobbies.

For instance, a china plate first priced at only $10 in 1969 now brings $245. Another exceptional plate originally priced at $25 in 1965 now sells for $1,050.

WHAT is the secret of success in collecting plates for profit? A suburban Chicago art dealer says, "The amateur collector needs professional guidance. You should know what to look for, when to buy, and much more."

According to this dealer, when you know the guidelines, there's much more than profit in collecting rare plates. There's pride of ownership almost unequalled by any other hobby. There's the joy of discovering stunning porcelain, glass, pewter, or silver plates for dramatic wall displays.

You can choose designs by Pablo Picasso, Grandma Moses, André Restieau, Andrew Wyeth, and other noted artists. There are all kinds of themes—nature scenes, stirring historical events, childhood vignettes, portraits of world heroes, and much more.

FREE INFORMATION: To help you get started in the rewarding hobby of plate collecting, this dealer now offers free information on request. It tells how to choose potentially priceless heirlooms for as little as $15 or $20. Individuals (not dealers) are invited to send for the free facts without obligation. To get yours, send your name, address, and zip code to Bradford Galleries, 378K Bradford Place, Northbrook, Illinois 60062. A postcard will do. Please mail your request by September 21, 1974, to reserve your free copy while the supply lasts.

Will this plate multiply in value to 10, 15 or even 20 times its original price as other plates have done?

Ford Scoffs At System

The happy and trusting relationship between President Ford and the public, press and Congress has collapsed at an all too early date because of bad judgment and suspicion.

Bad judgment on the part of President Ford in his premature unconditional pardon of Richard Nixon before the legal system had a chance to work and at a time when others accused of similar crimes are either in prison or are facing trial and have suffered disgrace no less painful to them than the former president's fall from power was to him. And suspicion on the part of millions of Americans who must wonder what it was that motivated Ford to act so abruptly in placing Nixon above the law.

It is hoped that it was bad judgment only and that the wholly political considerations that were so much a part of many of the actions of the former administration were not present in this case.

No matter what degree of conscience or sincerity was at the root of his decision, Ford through his pardon scoffed at the American system of justice. Nixon was pardoned for all federal crimes he may have committed while president without having to be subjected, as other citizens would be, to possible indictment, trial and determination of guilt or innocence. The facts were not laid bare in a court of law. All the answers to the Watergate questions will not be forthcoming and thus the scandal, rather than being put to rest, will remain with us. Not even a full confession by Nixon was demanded as a condition for a pardon. All that was said by the former president was that he regretted making mistakes. And Ford, in suggesting that impartial treatment of Nixon was perhaps impossible, threw the American concept of a fair trial into disrepute.

Another problem, of course, is what effect the pardon will have on the legal proceedings involving the other Watergate defendants. Only time will prove out the depth of that can of worms. But it will still be regrettably recorded on our national record that many participants in the scandals met justice in the matter while at least one escaped.

President Ford, empowered to pardon, misused his power in what is essentially a matter for the grand juries and the courts to decide. It was a misuse of power that will force many people to doubt the new president's judgment and motives.

If there was a proper time to temper justice with mercy, to keep, as millions of Americans would want, a former president from going to jail, it would have been after Mr. Nixon's guilt or innocence was determined in court.

As it happened, Ford turned his back on the justice system to spare a man who helped him to power and it could be a blunder of enormous proportions.

Pardon And Amnesty

The question concerning the double standard of justice employed in Mr. Nixon's behalf will be transferred, rightly or wrongly, to the issue of amnesty for Vietnam war draft evaders and deserters.

Many people of position and influence who hail President Ford's pardon for Nixon as a decent, humane and merciful act will not compromise their beliefs on amnesty. They will not even have anything to do with Ford's suggested "earned re-entry," a proposal we uncomfortable deem to be the most acceptable at the present time.

Sen. John Tower, the conservative Texas Republican and hawk of hawks, is such a person. Referring to Nixon's unconditional pardon, he says it "lays to rest the whole Watergate matter. It enables us to focus our attention on issues of critical importance which confront the nation."

Are the Towers in this nation equally disposed to lay to rest the whole Vietnam war matter by insisting on a strict accounting of the missing in action and by welcoming home the draft evaders and deserters — many of whom broke the law as a matter of principle and not as a matter of politics — through unconditional amnesty?

The answer, of course, is no. We will never see it.

BOB CONSIDINE

Our National Disgrace

NEW YORK—FBI Director Clarence Kelley's 282-page report on crime in the U.S. for 1973 is so painstakingly neat that a reader has to shake himself now and then to realize that what the man is saying is that his agents, and the forces of law and order in general, are abysmally losing the second Civil War.

Its text and charts would be more appropriate for a Department of Agriculture tract on the Des Moines hog market, or an HEW study on the pollen count. The shocking thing about the FBI report is that there is not one scream of outrage in it, no damnation of indifferent or corrupt judges, no reference to the blunt fact that the proudest nation in the world is going to hell in a bucket of blood.

"The law-enforcement effort is limited to factors within its control," one asinine non-sequitur reads. But the charts! They are beautiful!

For example, a page devoted to "Crime Clocks." It shows nine clocks whose single hands are at different points on the face. They are so meticulously drawn that one tends to overlook the captions which read:

Serious Crimes. 16 each minute. Violent Crimes (murder, forcible rape, robbery or assault to kill), one every 36 seconds. Murder, one every 27 minutes. Forcible rape, one every 10 minutes. Aggravated assault, one every 36 seconds. Robbery, one every 82 seconds.

There are lots and lots of agate type breakdowns of these basic "Crime Clocks" figures, most of them featuring blizzards of decimal points that must have leaked out of the expensive computers. But decimal shesmal, did you know there were 626 crimes "known to the police" committed in Berks County, Pennsylvania, last year as opposed to 4,361 in Clackamas County, Oregon?

Some other indications that as the economy goes down, down, down, the crime rates keep going up, up, up.

There were 8,638,400 crimes in America last year, 868,500 of them violent, 4,116 offenses for each 100,000 inhabitants. Female crime was up four per cent. A billion dollars worth of cars were stolen. Despite on-foot cops and prowling cars, street robbery was up 35% since 1968; residence robbery up 64% over the same period; chain store robbery up ... And On The Card Put, Guns Don't Kill People ...

167%; daytime burglaries of residence up 56%. Property valued at more than $2,500,000, 382,689 robberies, 2,540,900 burglaries, 4,304,000 larcenies and 923,600 auto thefts.

"Those dollar losses were reduced by 37% due to police recoveries," the FBI book says with a note of pride.

Seventy-one per cent of the weapons used by mugs to kill law enforcement officers were handguns — mostly Saturday Night Specials.

If you doubt that there's a war on within the U.S., consider this: Last year, 15 out of every 100 law-enforcement officers were assaulted while on duty; 19,510 citizens were murdered — more than were killed in action in some of the great invasions and battles of World War II. Fifty-three per cent of all murders were committed with handguns, up 46 per cent since 1968, and assaults through the use of a firearm have increased 63 per cent.

But not a word in the report that is the least bit critical of the National Rifle Association, Congress's pet lobby.

The FBI is concentrating, however, on at least one American, though he has no known criminal background.

About 400 G-men are looking into the past and present of Vice President-designate Nelson A. Rockefeller. There's a shady character for you! Can he account for his whereabouts over the past 30 years, except such obvious "covers" as director of the Rockefeller Center, Inc., Coordinator Inter-Am Affairs, Asst. Secretary of State for American Republics Affairs, Chairman Internal Development Advisory Board, Undersecretary of Health, Education and Welfare, chairman of the President's Advisory Committee on Government Organization, chairman of the Human Resources Committee, trustee of the Museum of Modern Art and the Museum of Primitive Art, trustee of the Rockefeller Brothers Fund, founder of the International Basic Economy Corporation, winner of dozens of honorary degrees and awards, and governor for 15 years of something he evasively calls New York State?

Where did he get his dog, aside from the flimsy alibi that his grandfather was a crocheter old billionaire named John D. Rockefeller? How much is he worth? How's his credit?

It's comforting to know that this eternal vigilance is pursuing its course.

Dist. by King Features Synd.

ANTHONY LEWIS

BOSTON — On Aug. 9, after taking the oath of office of president, Gerald Ford said: "The Constitution works." One month later, in a sudden and ill-considered gesture, he has frustrated the process of law and the Constitution. The damage to his own hopes will be grave, perhaps irreparable.

He pardoned Richard Nixon for any and all crimes he committed while president—and did so without knowing in any detail the special prosecutor's evidence on the extent of those crimes, official and personal. He issued the pardon without requiring even the minimal plea of guilty that was widely considered inadequate in the case of Spiro Agnew. He gave the pardon to a man who has spoken not a word of confession or contrition for acts that injured many human beings and wounded his country.

Ford acted in the name of mercy, speaking of his obligation to the laws of God. His motives were surely of the best, to show charity to a fallen friend and spare his country continued trauma. But his good intentions only make the occasion sadder, for the result must be the opposite of what he hoped for America: more rancor, more division, more cynicism about government and law.

The Nixon story was "an American tragedy," the President said. He gave emphasis to the suggestion that punishment for Nixon, or the threat of it hanging over him, might "threaten his health."

But punishment — a jail term, that

Constitutional Process Cut Short

"In cases of impeachment, the party convicted shall nevertheless be liable and subject to indictment, trial, judgment and punishment, according to law." — The Constitution of the United States, Article I, Section 3 sort of thing — has never been the issue. Judges and prosecutors have ample discretion to help those who are ill or who have suffered enough, and presidents can pardon them when the cause of justice has been served. Those I know who were most concerned about principle in the Nixon case in fact believed that, however the criminal process worked, he should not end up in prison.

The issue was the law. It was well put by The Times of London, a newspaper that showed much concern for fairness to Nixon throughout Watergate. The very purpose for the long struggle for the truth in Watergate, the Times said, was "to reassert the supremacy of law over executive power. Not the least of the principles to be reasserted is that no man is too great or too special to be exempt from the rule of law or the processes of justice."

Now the whole country will presumably see the spectacle of a former President's principal aides being tried for obstruction of justice, with his self-incriminating words as critical evidence, while he is intouched. That will be the image of equal justice for this generation of Americans.

The President relied, in his explanation for the pardon, on the advice that it would be difficult to find an unbiased jury to try Nixon for many months. It is true that the impeachment process has spread the evidence against him widely, and that care would have to be taken to assure a jury that would stick to the trial evidence. But that would hardly be an insuperable task.

The Supreme Court has said that jurors trying a notable case need not be "ignorant of the facts and issues involved." Indeed, the court said, to exclude jurors as prejudiced merely because they had "any preconceived notion as to guilt or innocence of an accused would be to establish an impossible standard. It is sufficient if the juror can lay aside his impression or opinion and render a verdict based on the evidence."

In using his pardoning power on the basis of possible jury bias, Ford has effectively nullified the clause of the Constitution explicitly authorizing criminal prosecution as well as impeachment of any federal officer. Of course there was no television in 1787 to publicize the impeachment process. But if John Adams, say, had been impeached and then prosecuted, the details would have been well known to most Americans — and certainly to the men of property who served on trial juries.

The effect of Ford's gesture on the system of criminal justice is the most appalling prospect. All along in Watergate, many ordinary Americans have said that the rich and powerful would escape justice in the end. Those who believed in the system told them they were wrong. On Aug. 9 it appeared that they were. Now they will know otherwise.

The United States has a terrible crime problem. Just the other day the attorney general, William Saxbe, called attention to its dimensions once again. In considerable part, the problem is one of a system of criminal justice in whose efficacy and integrity the citizen does not believe. The case of Richard Nixon was for most Americans by far the most important test in their lifetimes of that system's integrity. Who can argue against cynicism now.

"Someone must write 'The End' to the Nixon Tragedy, Ford said, and 'only I can do that.' For the sake of 'domestic tranquility' he said, he must 'firmly shut and seal this book.' An ending is what America deeply desires, but it had to be a real ending — one reached by going through the whole process. We have to finish something for once, without compromises, without deals. We needed the tranquility that comes only by working a problem through. We needed to proceed, in the words of the Constitution, 'according to law.'

The Waiting Game

WASHINGTON — Are the Democrats in Congress going to stand still while President Ford implements them in his doing nothing approach to the economic situation?

The President's economic policy and the political strategy to support it have begun to emerge. Aside from encouraging the Federal Reserve Board to permit a slight easing of interest rates, the President appears to be focusing on a reduction in the federal budget as the best way to deter inflation.

Such a narrowly focused program would be seriously inadequate. The economy is not suffering from a classic inflation in which too much money is bidding for too few goods and services. On the contrary, certain major industries such as oil, steel, chemicals, automobiles, and copper have raised prices even though demand is stable — as in oil — or actually falling — as in automobiles. In those industries, prices are administered by large firms rather than determined by competition in the marketplace. Only the political power of government can restrain the autonomous economic power of these huge firms.

At the same time, this inflation has not yet become one in which labor's wages are forcing up costs. It may soon become so if the economy is not stabilized but unions until recently have been notably circumspect in their wage demands.

In the unusual circumstances in which the nation finds itself, a balanced budget and severely restrictive interest rates cannot comprise an effective program. In both human and economic terms, it would be scandalously wasteful for Americans to tolerate 6 to 7% unemployment during the next two years when there are so many ways in which that labor could be usefully employed. There is no need for the nation to stagnate at a lower level of economic activity in a reckless attempt to slow the rise in prices when with constructive action, the nation could achieve price stability and nearly full employment at a higher level of activity.

The Democrats in Congress, however, are having considerable difficulty not only in devising a comprehensive program of their own but also in preventing themselves from being enveloped by the President's strategy. On Aug. 20, he met with the leaders of both parties in Congress to thank them for acting promptly on his bill to establish an agency to monitor wages and prices, a totally useless measure.

At that meeting, Ford tried but did not succeed in getting the Democrats to participate in a joint statement deploring mandatory economic controls. After the meeting, however, the President issued his own statement in which he said: "It was the unanimous opinion of the leaders present that, as a practical matter, this Congress would not approve such legislation."

As the President well knows, that statement is factually inaccurate. If he were to ask for such controls, the bill establishing them would sweep through Congress and be on his desk within two weeks.

On Sept. 3, the White House went a step too far in trying to create bipartisan responsibility for a policy of passivity. L. William Seidman, one of the President's closest advisers and manager of his economic summit conference, told reporters that major decisions would have to be postponed until early next year because Congress wanted to adjourn by Oct. 15.

Sen. Mike Mansfield of Montana, the majority leader, hastily assembled his fellow Democrats and announced that they think action on economic issues is urgently needed and they are prepared to stay in session for the rest of the year to achieve it. Mansfield said that he personally favored mandatory wage and price controls, but that it would probably be impossible for Congress to enact a comprehensive economic program without the president's cooperation.

His caution is well-founded. In neither house do the Democratic leaders have the personal authority or the political power to hold their nominal majorities in line for any coherent economic program if the farm, labor, and business lobbyists are ravaging their ranks with the support of the White House.

That was dramatically demonstrated in the House on April 16, 1973 when the Democratic leadership tried to reinstate mandatory controls three months after President Nixon had eviscerated them with his ineffectual phase III. A "freeze" proposed by Rep. Henry Reuss, D-Wis., was defeated 263 to 139. A majority of Democrats voted for it, but 97 of them defected to the almost solid Republican opposition led by Gerald Ford.

Since comparable divisions plague the Democrats on vital tax questions, Congress is likely to drift as long as the President chooses to drift. Yet even if the prospects for enactment are not now encouraging, Congress has a responsibility to work out its own program and clarify the alternatives before the country. If the economic situation worsens, public opinion may force the administration to adopt a more courageous and creative course.

View From Inside

WASHINGTON — From inside the McNeil Island penitentiary has come a fascinating insight into the controversy over prison sentences.

A McNeil Island convict named Edward Browder has sent us proof that it helps to be a government bigwig. Mafia don, labor leader or White House intimate at sentencing time.

The 57-year-old Browder presented us with a four-inch-thick survey entitled: "A Study of White Collar Offenses Involving Politicians, Bankers, Businessmen and the Professional Swindler, Promoter, Labor Union Racketeer, Organized Criminal Offenders."

Browder is good at statistics, as a former manipulator of pilfered stocks. He has also had plenty of time to conduct his survey at McNeil Island where he is serving a 25-year sentence.

Insofar as possible, we checked out his statistical findings with the annual reports of the federal courts. We also consulted a similar survey by federal prosecutors in New York. Browder's figures stand up.

The inmate found that noted white-collar criminals average a little more than two years in prison regardless of how much they steal. About 20% get off with no prison sentence at all through fines, probation or suspended sentences. Many are able to delay cases almost indefinitely, sometimes until they are dropped.

Major Mafia figures and top labor hoodlums get an even kinder break from the judges. Their prison terms average about two years, with almost 40% getting no prison sentences. Only narcotics sentences are consistently stiff.

Among the examples cited by Browder was Mafia don Angelo "Gyp" DeCarlo, who drew a 12-year sentence but was freed by President Nixon after only 18 months.

The survey also cites a host of bigwigs who wound up with less than two years or, in some cases, no jail at all. Among them were ex-Rep. John Dowdy, D-Tex., ex-Rep. Irv Whalley, R-Pa., New York Democratic leader Carmine DeSapio, financier Louis Wolfson, ex-Army Maj. Gen. Carl Turner and former Nixon figures Herb Kalmbach and Richard Kleindienst.

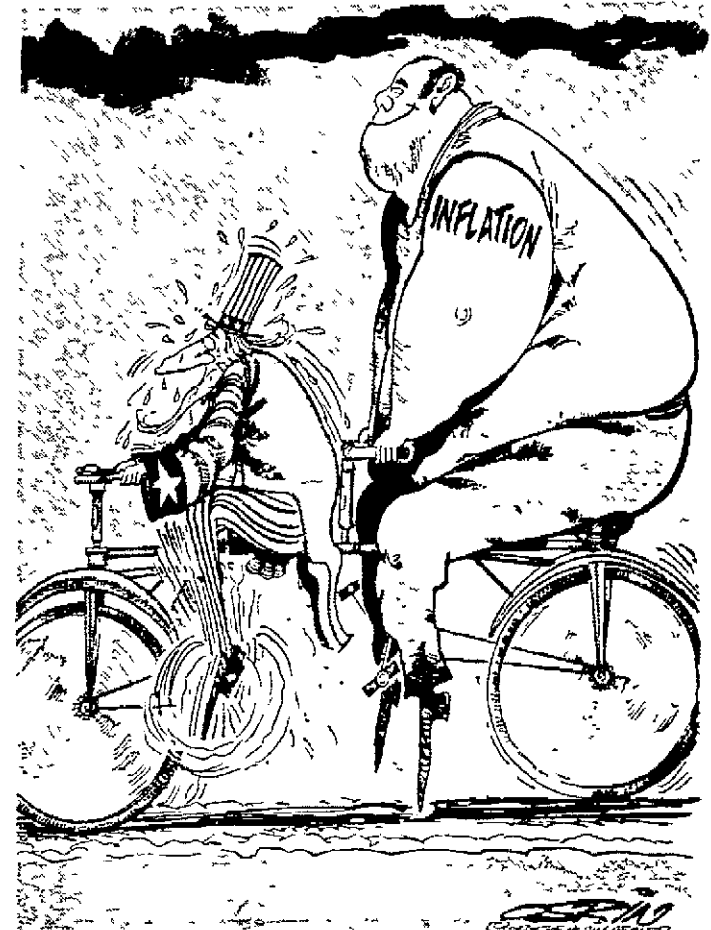

In one ingenious section of his survey, Browder shows through computations that prominent white-collar defendants average about one year for every $10 million they steal. He also found some $800 million in thefts, stock swindles and other dodges, which have been punished only with fines, probation and suspended sentences.

In contrast, bank robbers who got away with a few thousand dollars averaged 11-year sentences, five times longer in the slammer than bank embezzlers who got away with millions.

Footnote: Browder cites a few exceptions including Billie Sol Estes, the fertilizer king, who did six years, and Tino de Angelis, the salad oil swindler, who served seven. Browder also feels, obviously, that his own 25-year sentence is excessive.

Although his findings are restricted to the federal courts, our sources say that the discrimination in sentences is often worse in state courts.

VIRGINIA PAYETTE

Big Belts, Too

NEW YORK — The President says the way to attack inflation is for everybody (that's what he said, "everybody") to tighten his belt and build up a spirit of sacrifice.

So I have made up this little list ...

It may not be exactly what he had in mind, but it's full of sacrifice, all right. For, of all places, the very top. Let's begin with that little item of a White House swimming pool. At today's prices, there's no way Mr. Ford can have one put in for less than $20,000 or $30,000. (And we're probably still paying on the $500,000 it costs to cover up the old one.)

So the list starts off with a one-dollar item. That's for a key to the Congressional gym, where senators and representatives have, I hear, not only a nice heated pool, but all kinds of other body-building gadgets they probably wouldn't mind sharing with a former colleague.

Granted, it's not as convenient as one in his own backyard. He'll have to go several blocks to have his swim; that's where the sacrifice comes in. But think what it will do for relations with "the Hill."

Item Number Two is "office expenses." The office being in San Clemente and the expenses being a whopping $850,000. That seems like a lot.

We all know Mr. Nixon would do anything for the good of the country (that's why he resigned, wasn't it?) and he would probably be only too glad to help out now.

Take that $70,000 for furnishings and office supplies. Maybe he could make do with the old desks and typewriters the government put in when that was the winter White House.

If he wanted to be big about it, he could offer to cut down on the $40,000 travel item, too ... or spend less than $21,000 for communications ... the very word conjures up countless suggestions for sacrifices and Congress is working on that. So let's concentrate on the $1.6 billion worth of tanks, guns, rockets, etc., they're planning to give away.

The brass says it's obsolete, not worth a tenth of what we paid for it, so they're going to hand it over to foreign governments. That seems wasteful, even for the Pentagon. How about a garage sale, or something?

Also, maybe the government could do what other bosses do in hard times: lay off a few employees. With 14.1 million people on the public payroll (that adds up to one out of every six civilians) the annual tab for salaries comes to $135 billion.

Just for openers, we could fire all the goof-offs and gold-bricks. (You know there are some; why else would everything be in such lousy shape?) Next, the "double-dippers" who draw military pensions AND government salaries. And if we only got rid of Congressmen's relatives we'd save a bundle.

Let's also get it straight that sacrifice means cutting extravagances everywhere, including some it would be nice to have, except that we can't afford them right now. That includes things like:

—$730,000 to historians to publish the writings of the Founding Fathers.

—$1.3 million to teach kids in California "how the law really works."

—$120,000 to remodel office suites for executives hired on "to slash wasteful welfare spending."

—Offering free helicopters on the spur of the moment to people like Egyptian President Sadat, plus flying lessons and spare parts to go with it. And selling wheat to Russia at cut-throat (our throat) prices.

These are all minor economies in a $300-billion-plus budget. But every little money helps.

Legal Information Service 'Innundated' With Requests

By GORDON WINTERS
Star Staff Writer

Since its creation two months ago, the Creighton Legal Information Center has been "innundated" with requests for services, the director of the project said Monday.

"I think that everyone who writes a grant application for something like this has nightmares where nobody ever calls you," Prof. Geoff Peters of the Creighton Law School faculty said.

But to date, Peters said, the project has received about 100 phone calls from judges, prosecutors, defense attorneys and command police officers in outstate Nebraska seeking legal research on specific cases.

Research Free

Providing research without charge is the main function of the center, which received its first phone call July 10, before staff members even knew the toll-free telephone line was open.

Behind the center lies a theory that people in the criminal justice system in outstate Nebraska may not have access to a well-stocked law library, or may have to travel 100 miles or more in order to reach one.

Because of that, the criminal justice system (the procedure under which a person is arrested, accused, tried and sentenced) may not work as well as it should.

Well-Known Cases

"We've done research on a couple of homicide cases that would be very well known if I could talk about them without prejudicing the case," Peters said.

"We've also got a couple calls where the caller said, 'I've got to go to court in two hours and I need the answer to this,'" Peters said. "We don't encourage that, but we've done it."

"We simply did not expect this volume of calls," Peters said.

LAP Seeks Approval To Continue Program

By LINDA OLIG
Star Staff Writer

The Lincoln Action Program has found itself with a surplus of general operating funds but a program that soon will be forced out of existence.

And it is struggling to keep that Family Alcoholism Counseling Program alive.

Between compliments for the low-income program and insults to other community alcoholism agencies, the LAP board voted Monday to seek City Council approval to shuffle General Revenue Sharing Funds so the alcoholism program can survive.

Granted In June

The funds, totaling $42,139, were granted by the council June 11, when it appeared that direct federal funding by the Office of Economic Opportunity would be disrupted. The City Council grant was for the three-month period, July 1 through Sept. 30.

The general OEO funds eventually came through, leaving LAP with a funding surplus.

However, funding sources for the alcoholism program have been switched from OEO to the National Institute on Alcohol Abuse and Alcoholism which has announced its intention to discontinue funding of the Lincoln low-income program Sept. 30.

'Void Or Lapse'

"I hate to see a void or a lapse in the alcoholism program," said LAP Director Jesse Payne as he sought the board's approval of the proposal to be submitted to the City Council.

Warning the board of a possible battle, board member and City Councilwoman Helen Boosalis said she had received a letter dated Sept. 9 from Lincoln Council on Alcoholism and Drugs Director Bob Adams. In it, he recommended the shuffling of funds not be approved. "Either by NIAAA or the City of Lincoln" until a total evaluation was made of the LAP program's program and staff.

Admitting that alcoholism programs in Lincoln often duplicate one another, the board agreed to begin looking for means of integrating its program with other agencies, with the stipulation that low-income persons and families be given due consideration.

Lack Of People

Noting that "the program suffers from a lack of people with credentials in the alcoholism community," Leighton Wessel, police community relations officer, recommended Payne re-evaluate the proposed budget in an attempt to increase the director's salary and attract a more qualified director. The budget now calls for a $10,057 annual director's salary.

Without discussion, the board also voted to seek another shuffling of funds, this time from the Lancaster County Commission which granted the agency serving low-income persons nearly $15,000.

LAP is proposing to use the $6,817 balance to purchase a 12-passenger van to aid in transporting low-income residents of rural Lancaster County for human services purposes.

Vacation Policies

In other, action, the board instructed its personnel committee to draw up alternative vacation policies and referred to respective committees the affirmative action plan and personnel policy of the League of Human Dignity which has contracted to be a delegate agency of LAP.

The board also agreed to develop and implement an equal opportunity grievance procedure and assign a staff person to serve as human rights coordinator.

Mini-Bike Trail Set Up By City Near Oak Creek

Mini-bike riders will have a place to try out their skill.

It's a trail on the north side of Oak Creek, south of Cornhusker Hwy. Parks and Recreation Director Don Smith said the trail will open at 9 a.m. Saturday and will close daily at sunset.

Smith said his department is recommending that riders wear helmets and that children between eight and 12 be accompanied by an adult. Riders under 8 years of age will not be allowed on the 900-yard course.

Rangers will periodically check the trail, Smith said.

Chenault Jurors Selected

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — Jury selection was completed Monday for the trial of Marcus Wayne Chenault, charged with murder in the slaying of Mrs. Martin Luther King Sr. last June.

Four blacks were among the seven men and five women chosen in Superior Court after 42 prospective jurors were questioned. Among the jurors are a teacher, students, several businessmen and department store clerks.

Tight security prolonged the selection. Everyone entering the courtroom, including the prospective jurors, was required to pass through an electronic detector.

Defense attorneys asked each prospective juror if he or she ascribed to the beliefs of the late Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., son of the slain woman, in his fight for civil rights.

The most commonly asked question by the prosecutor was if the prospective juror had attended church within the last two or three years. Mrs. King was shot to death as she played the organ in her church.

Columbus Man Hurt In Mishap

A Columbus man was hospitalized Monday afternoon with cuts to the head, face, chest and legs after the car he was driving rammed a light pole, police said.

Merle R. Christensen was listed in "fair" condition at Lincoln General hospital Monday evening.

Police said Christensen was northbound on Cotner between Aylesworth and Francis when the car he was driving swerved to the left and struck a light pole on the median.

"We are already seeing if we can divert funds from elsewhere in our budget to hire more law students to do research."

LEAA Financed

The legal information center was set up with $134,583 from the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration (LEAA). The project is one of those funded directly from the national offices of LEAA, rather than through the State Crime Commission.

According to Peters, LEAA selected Nebraska to study problems unique to rural criminal justice systems and to test the need for research assistance services. The service is available only to those outside of Omaha and Lincoln.

"Uniformity is one of the major concerns," Peters said. "Do different people get treated differently?"

Technical Problem

"It's not a political problem. It's more of a technical problem. One person reads a statute one way, another person reads it another way."

"Because of this two guys could do the same thing, but be charged under one statute one place, and another statute another place," Peters said.

Peters said he hopes the project will increase communication between and among prosecutors, defense counsel and judges, leading to more uniformity and consistency.

In addition to the research on specific issues, the center also offers other services such as lending library materials, xeroxing cases and staff research memos and doing research on pending or recent legislation and criminal justice problems.

May Produce 'Deskbook'

Also being considered is the center's involvement in producing a modern Nebraska "deskbook," a handy guide on topics like rules of evidence, basic criminal law and the form of legal documents.

With the cooperation of the state's district judges, the center also is establishing a practice of reporting district judge's opinions on cases appealed from county judges.

"Many county judges are in the unenviable position of not knowing what they are or are not doing correctly when their cases go up on appeal," the center's newsletter notes.

Liens Against Club Filed For Tax Debts

State and federal tax liens totaling more than $27,000 were filed Monday against the Lincoln Satellite Supper Club, Inc., which was virtually destroyed by fire a week ago.

According to the documents filed in the office of Lancaster County Register of Deeds Kenneth Ferguson, the liens were for unpaid state sales tax for the months of April, May and June, and unpaid federal social security and related employee benefit taxes for the quarters ending Dec. 31, 1973 and March 31, 1974.

The State of Nebraska listed $6,367 in unpaid sales tax as follows: April, $1,556; May, $2,276; and June, $2,534.

The federal government listed unpaid taxes totaling $20,760.

Lincoln Fire Department officials said Monday that three fire inspectors working full-time have been joined by two Lincoln Police Department detectives to try to determine the cause of the blaze.

Candidacy Not Violation-Nuernberger

Railroad Transportation Safety District (RTSD) Director Marv Nuernberger told board members Monday he does not believe he is, in violation of the Hatch Act as a result of his petition drive which will place his name on the November ballot.

Nuernberger, who will be a candidate for county surveyor, assured board members his candidacy would not adversely affect the board.

Councilman Max Denney brought up the possible Hatch Act violation because he has received several calls about it, he said.

Denney pointed out that

Nuernberger had filed for the county job, but withdrew before the May primary.

Nuernberger explained that he withdrew because he was told he would be violating the Hatch Act, which prohibits state and federal employees from taking an active role in political campaigns or filing for office if their jobs are financed in any way with federal funds.

The RTSD has been designated as a federal demonstration project and will receive Federal Highway Administration dollars to help relocate railroad tracks and eliminate train-street conflicts.

Denney said people are asking, "If you were in violation of the Hatch Act before, why aren't you now?"

RTSD legal counsel Bob Guenzel replied that there is a difference between filing for office and being nominated by petition.

Guenzel said he believed Nuernberger's candidacy was in

Extension Agents Hold Civil Rights Workshop

University of Nebraska extension agents will be better able to include minorities in extension programs as a result of workshops conducted in Lincoln, according to Bill Cords, administrative assistant in the University of Nebraska-Lincoln agricultural extension department.

The second of three civil rights training workshops was held in Lincoln Monday.

Cords said state specialists, extension workers who act as resource personnel for county agents, are being briefed in department plans to increase participation in extension programs, general or specifically minority based.

One-third of the state specialists attend each day-long workshop. They began early in August and end Sept. 30, Cords said.

Phil Sutton coordinates civil rights programs for the department, he said.

Illegality Alleged

Des Moines (UPI) — Des Moines businessman Robert Dille filed suit in Polk County Equity Court, alleging that the City Council had acted illegally in the development of an East Side downtown urban renewal project.

Goals, Policies Bylaws Rejected

By LYNN ZERSCHLING
Star Staff Writer

City lawmakers rejected Monday the Goals and Policies Committee's proposed bylaws and rerouted the rules back to the citizens group for an overhaul.

Lincoln City Council members suggested several changes, including the elimination of the controversial cumulative voting procedure under which executive board members of the committee would be elected.

That proposal would allow each Goals and Policies Committee member to cast as many votes for one nominee to the executive board as there were seats on that board.

Councilman Max Denney called for the elimination of that procedure on the grounds that "it will create more problems than it solved."

Denney said the procedure would allow special interest groups to pack the executive board. And that would be "dangerous," he said.

At the committee's August meeting, the cumulative voting procedure was adopted by a majority vote over the loud protests of other members who charged that businessmen and developers were attempting to take over the committee.

The Goals and Policies Committee was set up to provide citizens with an avenue of input into the community planning process. Any resident of the county can attend those meetings and become a voting member. If 500 attend the meeting, all 500 can vote.

Denney and other lawmakers said they wanted the bylaws to insure that members elected to the executive board represented a geographic and socio-economic mix of the community.

The committee had rejected proposals asking for that type of representation, contending that such a mix would be impossible to obtain in an election.

To get around the problem, council members suggested that only a portion of the board be elected. The remaining members would be appointed.

The council also suggested that there be 25 members on the board, instead of between 15 and 25 as stated in the bylaws.

The proposed bylaws also must be accepted by the County Board as well as by the City Council. The county has not yet considered the rules.

LES Counsel Issue Still Undecided

A meeting called to iron out differences between the City Council and Lincoln Electric System (LES) Board Monday appeared to have fallen short of the mark.

At issue is whether LES's legal counsel should be tied to the city attorney's office. LES Board Chairman John Haessler said the underlying issue was really the semi-autonomous nature of the board.

Councilman Max Denney, who has lobbied for a closer link between various attorneys working for city boards and the city attorney's office, explained he was not finding fault with LES attorney Norman Krivosha.

Denney said he believes a closer liaison between the LES counsel and the city attorney's office made sense from an administrative standpoint.

Board Member Object

Most LES board members objected to any possible erosion of their semi-independent nature, and said they did not favor a compromise suggested by City Atty. Dick Wood.

Wood proposed the LES board continue to hire and pay its legal counsel and that the counsel be given a name change only of "special assistant to the city attorney."

operations of LES, he argued, since the board's responsibility is to the ratepayers, not the City Council.

Wood said the liaison between his office and Krivosha has been "outstanding," and said he not think the problems mentioned by Haessler would materialize.

Councilwoman Helen Boosalis said the establishing of a closer link between the two legal staffs would keep such conflicts from arising.

she believed the council eventually would take some action on the subject.

The council also will meet with the Lincoln General Hospital Board to discuss the same issue. The hospital employs an outside attorney, who also happens to be Krivosha.

Sweeny Queen Of Italian Fete

San Francisco (UPI) — Her name is Sweeny, and she has been elected Queen of the Annual Columbus Day festivities, a celebration of San Francisco's Italian colony.

Angela Marie Sweeny, 17, was eligible for the queen contest because her mother is Italian. She won over Angela Sozzi, Theresa Aliotti, Mariatita Rinaldi, and Louisa Moschini.

Council OKs Detoxification Center Grant

The City Council Monday informally approved a $94,200 grant to the Salvation Army to help pay for an around-the-clock detoxification center.

The center will be manned by Salvation Army staff and will be housed in the group's building at 7th and P Sts. The program is scheduled to get under way by Jan. 1.

John Judge, a consultant from the Salvation Army's headquarters in Chicago, said the detoxification center's program will be aimed at decriminalizing public intoxication. Under the program, a person picked up by the police for intoxication would have the choice of being taken to the detoxification center, or the police station.

Judge said the police still would have the authority to arrest and have jailed a person whom they believe was violent or resisting arrest.

However, Police Chief Joe Carroll said people picked up by the police should be taken directly to the jail.

Assistant City Atty. Charles Humble said he favored the program because "our current process is giving us lots of difficulties — we're prosecuting the same people over and over again."

The Salvation Army's plan would offer an alternative to and possibly some help to the chronic drinker, he said.

The council appointed a subcommittee to work with Carroll, the city attorney's office and the Salvation Army to work out the details of the program.

Councilwoman Sue Bailey said she hoped the subcommittee could resolve Carroll's opposition to the program.

Lindell Hearing Time Corrected

How does a Heat Pump pump?

Just like your refrigerator.

You've probably never thought of your refrigerator as having a pump. But it does...a pump that pumps refrigerant instead of water. The refrigerant, as it is pumped, absorbs heat from inside the cabinet and brings the temperature down to the point where you can freeze ice cubes. In the meantime, the heat absorbed by the refrigerant is expelled as the refrigerant returns to the pump for recycling.

Using the same principle as the refrigerator, the heat pump works to air condition your home in the summer by absorbing heat from the inside and exhausting it outside. When heat is needed, the heat pump reverses itself. It then takes heat from outside air, even at cold winter temperatures, and delivers it inside your home to keep your home at whatever temperature you want. In other words, the heat pump provides you with year-around comfort from a single system.

In Lincoln, it is not at all unusual for a heat pump to deliver two or more units of heat for every heat unit of electricity it uses. The mechanical leverage employed by this unique system provides far greater efficiencies in energy utilization than is possible with any conventional heating system.

With energy conservation of prime interest, the efficiency of the heat pump looms in importance...especially when the installation is made to LES's recommended standards. Additionally, it constitutes a tried and proven method of attaining national goals directed at replacing the need for scarce petroleum-based fuels.

Several reliable heat pump models are now available through local heating and air conditioning dealers.

In addition to being ideal for new construction, conversions of present heating and cooling systems are generally practical when a home or building is properly insulated and existing warm-air duct work is satisfactory.

You can get further information and planning assistance by stopping in or calling a heating specialist at LES.

San Francisco — School time. The moppets put up their lunch in brown paper bags and trudged off to the halls of education. Vacation is over. For the neighborhood mamas, vacation begins.

All over the street you can hear the phones coming off the hook.

"Finally I got them off to school! Isn't it wonderful?"

While I was in Mexico we changed Presidents — he was changed in Spanish so I missed some of the fine points. Our mother cat, Hell, was put in neutral by a skillful veterinarian.

I said: "Hang up the gloves while you're ahead, Hell. One bunch of kittens is enough. Stack arms."

Before the kittens were ready to give away, Hell showed all the signs she was going to go for the money again. Tomcats began howling around the back door.

The moppets protested — why not? look who gets up and opens the cans of cat food.

I said: "Blast it, I can't go through another set of kittens. I want to spend my fading years in peace."

☆☆☆

The kittens went to splendid homes nearby. They come over and visit mother. (She spits at them — hiss!)

I took Polaroid pictures of them so Hell could show them to other cats.

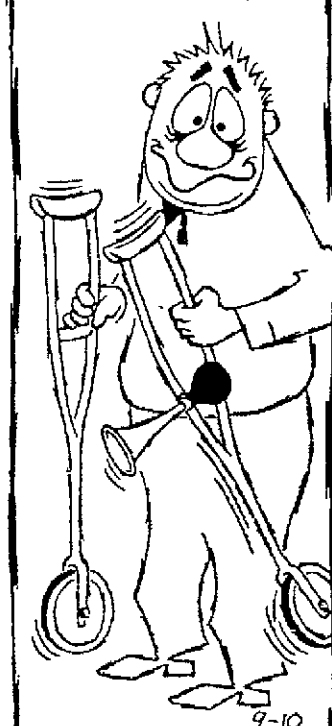

"This is Jeremy. He's got a summer job in the Catskills."

"This is Black Bear. He's raising catfish."

"Martin — the oldest one — is making catapults."

"Arthur — the one who couldn't pass math — is a tour guide in Rome. In the catacombs." And so on. You know how mothers are with snapshots.

I came home to find they pulled the rug out from under me at Snug Harbor.

"The management is pleased to inform you we are turning Snug Harbor into condominiums. Our tenants are being offered their present apartments at an attractive reduced price . . ."

I said to the children: "At my age I'm being thrown into the cold street to starve. We'll all wind up in a pauper's grave."

But the moppets only said: "The Cap'n's three sheets to the wind already. And it's only 10 o'clock."

I may join the French Foreign Legion.

I wrote some letters to Mexico. "Dear Sir: I left a Navy blue sweatshirt in room 1201 . . ."

"Dear Sir: In a Hertz car I turned in on empty-ump of September, I left a blue ski jacket . . ."

"Dear Sir: In room 108 I left a Japanese camera, serial number . . ."

I don't expect much to come of this. I left my heart in San Francisco and lost my mind in Mexico.

My hair grew a couple of inches. I am shaggy as a sheep dog thanks to a witchy hairdresser. She'd had me on a routine of rubbing the noggin with a Japanese tree lotion and a soap made of Mexican maguey. Same thing they use to make tequila.

Long ago my hair went out for a short beer and never came back.

Not much to do about it. "Easy come, easy go," I said.

However, the witchy hairdresser took me in hand and we have high hopes. A little long on the sides and in the back.

Social Work Touches New Areas

By CYNTHIA JOHNSON
Star Staff Writer

Until last week, Mrs. Sig Bergman, social services director at St. Elizabeth Hospital, was running a one-woman show.

And with a counseling case load of from 60 to 70 patients a month, her coffee breaks were few and far between.

However, in the future, Mrs. Bergman's load may be somewhat lighter, due to a program recently instituted by the St. Elizabeth's social services department in cooperation with the University of Nebraska School of Social Work.

Under the program, Miss Debbie Kiffin, a second-year graduate student at social work at UNL, will spend 16 to 20 hours each week working at St. Elizabeth's under the supervision of Mrs. Bergman.

As part of their course work, all graduate students enrolled in UNL's social work program, must complete two years of part-time clinical "field work" in addition to their studies, Miss Kiffin explained. And her year's work at St. Elizabeth's will help fulfill that requirement.

The field of hospital social services is a fairly new one in this part of the country, according to Mrs. Bergman, who said that the social services department at St. Elizabeth's has been operative for four years.

It is the job of a hospital social services department "to assist and meet the problems of patients whose medical needs may be aggravated by social factors; and who may need assistance in solving their social, economic and personal problems, before the maximum benefits from medical care can be obtained," she explained.

The primary function of a hospital social services worker is dismissal planning — making provision for services "that will prevent him (the patient) from coming back to the hospital," Mrs. Bergman continued.

"Nursing home placement is the largest area of work," she said. However the job also involves such things as arranging for meals-on-wheels and use of the

Senior Handi-Bus, and even locating baby-sitters.

Mrs. Bergman also provides "supportive counseling" for individuals using the hospital's "long-term care" facilities such as the neo-natal and burn trauma units.

And, "To some degree, I'm involved in financial assistance," she said. If hospitalization has caused a financial hardship for a patient, she "explores the avenues in the community" that might help alleviate the problem.

"Ideally, I'd like to come in contact with each admission," Mrs. Bergman said. "I'm fully convinced that there are many people who have problems we could help them with."

However, because of a "lack of sufficient personnel," she must depend on referrals — from doctors, nurses, family members, friends, and even the patients themselves.

The field of hospital social work has opened up greatly, said Miss Kiffin.

All hospitals are now required, by the Joint Commission on Accreditation of Hospitals, to provide some sort of social services counseling, Mrs. Bergman said.

And the demand for medical social services workers will increase as the number of local health and mental health clinics grows, she predicted.

"Some of the doctors in larger cities are also hiring social workers" to meet the non-medical needs of patients, Mrs. Bergman continued.

"It used to be that social work was just welfare," Miss Kiffin said. But now, the nature of a social worker's job "depends on how ingenious he or she wants to be."

A number of areas have been "totally untouched," according to Mrs. Bergman. "We could use an out-patient worker," said Mrs. Bergman, who laments the fact that once a patient is dismissed from the hospital, she loses contact with them.

"I don't like that," she said. "I have to hope that I've referred them to the proper people."

In general, patients have received the hospital's social services assistance very well, Mrs. Bergman said. "Once they are sure it isn't welfare, they're very grateful for the assistance."

Doctors have been a little less accepting, however. Mrs. Bergman said that many physicians "fear the paramedical fields," thinking that "they (the doctors) can meet all the needs of the patient."

However, "The tremendous influx of new, young doctors," has served to alter many of those negative opinions.

"The young doctors have sold the older ones on social services," Mrs. Bergman said.

Opening lead - jack of diamonds.
Contrary to popular belief, the expert does not use X-ray spectacles. Instead he employs a built-in set of antennae that assist him greatly in determining who has what.

Take this deal from a match between England and Egypt. When the British were North-South, they got to four spades and West led a diamond, won by the ace.

Declarer played a heart to the queen, which lost to the king. Back came a trump, the queen losing to the king and proving that South lacked X-ray eyes. West returned a heart, the jack forcing the ace.

After another round of trumps, declarer ruffed a heart in dummy, which East overruffed. East returned a trump and South played a club to the jack, which held. The position now was:

Declarer played the diamond queen, compelling East to play the king and thus shifting the burden of guarding diamonds to West. After ruffing the king, South cashed the 10-7 of hearts, forcing West to relinquish the ten of diamonds or ten of clubs. With either discard South would make ten tricks as a result of the transfer squeeze. Without the queen of diamonds lead the squeeze would have failed.

At the second table, with Egypt now North-South, the contract and opening lead were the same. Not to be outdone, the Egyptian declarer also made four spades on a transfer squeeze. Great minds run in the same direction!

Schnozz-Size Stereotypes Attacked

DEAR ABBY: I have been saddened and amused by the number of letters in your column from people who were upset by the size of their noses. The mother who couldn't love her baby because of its big schnozz hit me hard.

To me, a prominent nose is beautiful. Look at Cleopatra. A little button-nose may be "cute," but give me the beauty and character of a nose that is proud and prominent!

We are all entitled to our own standards of beauty. Why should we let Madison Avenue stereotypes lead us around by the nose?

KNOWS NOSES
DEAR KNOWS: We shouldn't. Which inspires the following limerick:

There once was a beauty named Rose,
A Puritan life-style she chose.
Lechers galore she would show to the door,
Would you say she was saved by her NOSE?

(Edgar Allen Po-Po)

DEAR ABBY: I would like to say something about that young mother who was depressed because she thought her infant daughter was too homely to take out in public.

I'm glad you sent that mother to a psychiatrist because she is desperately in need of treatment. If she doesn't take your advice and go, I'm afraid her daughter will be the one to end up on a psychiatrist's couch, getting treated for her inferiority complex.

That is what happened to me. When I was a little girl, my mother drummed into me that I was homely. I grew up believing I let myself get fat and sloppy. I never cared how I looked because I thought that I was so hopelessly ugly, nobody could care for me. I also became very promiscuous. That was the only way I could get a boy to pay any attention to me. My self-esteem was about as low as it could get.

At age 17, I had had three abortions, so my mother sent me to a psychiatrist. Meanwhile, she sobbed, "I'll never understand that child. I gave her everything."

My psychiatrist explained that small children believe everything their parents tell them and that my problems began when my mother convinced me that I was homely.

Groups Cater To Many Interests

Mrs. Judy Walsh met some of her new neighbors at a local League of Women's Voters meeting — before she met them as neighbors.

As a newcomer to Lincoln, she joined the League two years ago because "It's one way to rapidly get to know the community, the city government and the school system."

"There are so many different aspects or interests in League that you can pursue," said Mrs. Walsh, now a local League board member. "You can go and just listen and learn, or you can become more active."

Another Lincoln newcomer, surrounded by unpacked boxes and squalling toddlers, and desperate for adult conversation, signed up for bridge lessons at the YWCA.

Since the lessons wouldn't start for two weeks she called every newcomer club in town, holding that at least one was holding a meeting that week.

For the woman who is new in town or who wants to get involved in outside activities, the Lincoln community offers a variety of organizations ranging from purely social groups to civic, politically- and culturally-oriented clubs.

The following organizations are open to women; some also accept male members. Clubs with very limited or selective memberships are not included on the list.

POLITICAL

Lincoln-Lancaster League of Women Voters, a non-partisan organization which studies local, state and national issues and helps with voter service, voter education and voter registration. This year the more than 300-member group will concentrate on land-use study at both the county and national levels. Contact Mrs. Bonnie Sittig, 464-6881.

Lancaster County Democratic Women's Club, educates women about politics and issues. Members are also active volunteers in political campaigns and promote issues that are important to women. Contact Mrs. Di Anna Schmek, 488-0277.

Cornhusker Republican Women's Club, the group combines grass roots involvement in individual campaigns with education on party and political issues. Contact Mrs. Robert B. Crosby, 488-1700.

Lincoln Republican Women's Club, meets every third Friday to discuss issues of the day, state and national legislation. Supports volunteer work in state headquarters and for individual candidates. Contact Mrs. Neva Watts, 435-3867 or Miss Emily Mockett, 477-3349.

FEMINIST

Lincoln Women's Political Caucus, a non-partisan organization which encourages women to become involved in politics as informed voter and/or candidates. The group actively lobbies for women's issues before the state legislature. Contact Kathy Brauer, 475-1979.

Women's Equity Action League (WEAL), a feminist organization which strives to effect change through political action, legislation and education, rather than boycotts or law suits. Contact Donna Polk, 475-8451.

National Organization For Women (NOW), an action organization working toward the goals of equal rights for women under the law; legal and social justice and the elimination of sexism. The Lincoln NOW chapter has task forces working in areas of equal employment, child care, credit, legislation, rape, marriage, divorce and family laws, the right to control one's own reproductive life, the woman offender, poverty and minorities. ## Chili, Anyone?

Will there be enough beans to make "chili" when chilly weather hits this fall? The U.S. Department of Agriculture reported in its September Food Marketing Alert that supplies should be ample, with an expected record output 24 percent above last year's and the 1971-73 average.

The "Alert" bulletin was started last March by USDA's Agricultural Marketing Service to keep volume food buyers and communication media apprised of the food supply situation.

Chancellor Announces NU Won't Discipline Devaney

Scotts Bluff Has Demo Dinner For Candidates

Scottsbluff (AP) — About 400 persons attended a testimonial dinner for Democratic Party candidates sponsored by the Scotts Bluff County Democratic Committee.

Gov. J. James Exon called it the largest collection of Democrats in the Panhandle he had ever seen.

Candidates present included Wayne Ziebarth of Wilcox who is seeking the 3rd District congressional seat, former Gov. Frank Morrison who is running for attorney general and state treasurer candidate Catherine Dahlquist.

Ziebarth said Exon should receive serious consideration as a Democratic Party candidate for vice president. But Exon said he had no interest in the position.

By BOB GUENTHER
Star Staff Writer

No disciplinary action will be taken against University of Nebraska Athletic Director Bob Devaney for a letter he wrote endorsing Paul Douglas, Republican candidate for attorney general.

James Zumbeke, chancellor at the Lincoln campus, made that announcement Monday after The Star disclosed the existence of the letter written on university stationery and addressed to former NU athletes living in Omaha.

Zumbeke said he was convinced Devaney was acting as a political novice in writing the letters.

Devaney, he said, has recognized he was in error and has offered to reimburse the NU Athletic Department for time and material used in his support of Douglas. No mention was made about how much that would total.

Devaney is at liberty to support Douglas so long as he does not involve the university, Zumbeke said. However, he added that Devaney's close identification with the university made it difficult for him not to involve NU.

Zumbeke said Devaney was not even registered to vote and considered himself a political in-dependent.

Frank Morrison, the Democratic candidate for attorney general, has "a legitimate complaint" concerning the letters, Zumbeke said.

In the letters, dated Aug. 27, Devaney asked the former athletes to support Douglas "because I am sure that Paul would do a fine job and has been very fair to our athletic department as county attorney for Lancaster County."

State Democratic Party chairman Dick White questioned what Devaney meant in saying that Douglas has been "very fair" to the department.

Devaney said he simply meant that Douglas was a fair and impartial county attorney and not that he had shown any favoritism to athletes charged with criminal offenses.

Candidate Pledges Use Of Consumer Protection

Paul Douglas, Republican candidate for attorney general, said Monday he is looking forward to implementing Nebraska's first consumer protection act.

He described it as "a new tool for use by the state to control instances of fraudulent practices by unscrupulous operators."

Douglas, Lancaster County attorney for the past 14 years, said the statute passed earlier this year is virtually untried.

"I think that a common sense use of the authority will be a great advantage in protecting the public against persons who attempt to deceive and defraud the public," he said. "While it has obvious advantages in protecting the consumer, it also serves the legitimate business person by instilling greater confidence by the consumer who now knows that the shabby operator can be brought to task."

Douglas said retiring Atty. Gen. Clarence Meyer "has rightfully left it to his successor to determine the shape and extent of responsibility of the office in the area of consumer protection."

He said he sees the role of the attorney general as overseeing and coordinating.

Military Jails 16

Athens (AP) — Military courts in various Greek cities sentenced a total of 16 Jehovah's Witnesses to prison terms ranging from 12 to 20 years on charges of refusing to take up arms during the general mobilization against Turkey during the Cyprus crisis.

Martin Splits With Ford; Nixon Pardon 'Premature'

Rep. Dave Martin, R-Neb., normally a staunch administration supporter, split with President Ford Monday on his pardon of former President Richard Nixon, calling the move "premature."

"I believe the President made an error in judgment," Martin said, "in view of the present circumstances."

Martin's opinion contrasted sharply with those of Nebraska's two U.S. senators, Carl Curtis and Roman Hruska, who like Martin are both conservative Republicans. Curtis and Hruska praised the pardon move.

When told of Hruska and Curtis' positions, Martin said, "That doesn't bother me any. I make my own decisions."

"President Ford's action is certainly the compassionate and human thing to do," Martin said. "I feel however, that it was premature in view of the fact that no charges have been brought against Mr. Nixon."

Martin said the pardon "might have an adverse effect" on trials of top Nixon-aides. When asked if he was surprised, Martin said "Gosh, yes. I can't understand it — not at this time anyhow."

Mrs. Smith Praises Ford

North Platte (UPI) — Republican congressional nominee Mrs. Virginia Smith of Chappell Monday expressed support for President Ford's "compassionate pardon of former President Nixon."

"Further speculation on the subject of prosecuting the ex-president would only distract the nation, the congress and the administration from giving full and urgent attention to solving the overriding problems of our country," Mrs. Smith said during a campaign stop here.

"The nation now needs to unite behind President Ford instead of spending fruitless and futile months debating the fate of a resigned former president who already has brought a highly unusual and unprecedented punishment to his family and to himself," she said.

Pardon Of Nixon Wasn't Proper Before Deciding Guilt — Ziebarth

Wilcox (UPI) — Democratic congressional nominee Wayne Ziebarth said Monday he does not consider President Ford's pardon of former President Richard Nixon was proper.

"I'm sure all of us feel sorrow and concern over the personal crisis he faces," Ziebarth said. "In spite of this concern, however, I do not think a pardon was proper before the question of his guilt or innocence was decided by our system of justice. "The real question here is whether any person in this country is above the rule of law," he said. "Instead of being a decisive act that will put Watergate behind us, I feel that even more serious questions will be raised now because Americans will be asking whether we don't have a double standard of justice."

New Husband Wants To Live On Dutch Treat Basis

By ROBERT PETERSON

QUESTION: — "My husband died 10 years ago and I had to go to work as a secretary. Last year I met a salesman for a roofing company who seemed nice enough. He was divorced and had no children. We got married two months ago and moved into my home. Before we married he talked of how I'd have an easier life. But now he says I should continue working so I can pay for taxes on my home, maintenance, etc. Whenever anything goes wrong in the house he expects me to pay for it and says why shouldn't I since it's my house. All he buys are groceries. On all other things we live on a dutch treat basis. Isn't this wrong?"

ANSWER: — You should have reached a mutual understanding about work and money before tying the knot. Only time will tell whether you're married to a deadbeat. At least he's working, so that's a plus. Don't be alarmed at going Dutch — many working couples find this a satisfactory way of covering expenses. Be patient and see if gentleness doesn't generate a more chivalrous attitude in your new spouse and a more understanding attitude in yourself. If harmony doesn't come soon, you'd better air matters with a marriage counselor.

QUESTION: — "Our problem is Mom who lives two doors away. We have three children and both my husband and I believe in strict discipline. But Mom is one of those sweet but spineless souls who loves children and lets them get away with anything short of grand larceny. What can we do?"

ANSWER: — Strict discipline has its place on rearing children. But so does the tolerance and liberality of doting grandparents. Your children are lucky being exposed to both these worthwhile influences. Continue to exercise discipline and set some guidelines for the children's behavior when Grandma is around. Then stop worrying. All kids need occasional exposure to a tolerant, ever lovin' Grandma.

QUESTION: — "My wife is one of those worry warts who keeps everything under lock and key. She wants the house locked at all times and if I so much as go out to the garage there's a good chance she'll have locked the door by the time I return. She has locks on all our desks, bureaus, and trunks, and even puts the silver in a locked closet the day the cleaning woman comes."

ANSWER: — You probably can't change her, so let her enjoy these super security precautions. Try deriving some pleasure thinking of husbands who have the opposite problem — wives who never lock anything, who lose keys, money and important papers, have things stolen from them right and left, and never know where anything is.

QUESTION: — "I've read that you're only 55 years old. What makes you think a person that young is qualified to give advice on retirement and write columns and books on old age?"

ANSWER: — Well, I'm aging as fast as anyone else. Any chronicler on the subject of age has his problems. If you're too ancient they accuse you of being dull, old-fashioned or biased. And if you're under 60 they figure you don't know what you're talking about. You can't win.

'Gringo Park' Attracts Retirees

GUADALAJARA, Mexico (AP) — Its real name is Plaza San Francisco, but to most Guadalajara residents it is known as "Gringo Park."

It is a small, tree-lined Mexican square dominated by a Spanish colonial church called San Francisco church. Hence its official name.

But scores of elderly retired American citizens gather in the park almost every morning to "watch the world go by," as one of them put it. Hence its nickname.

"Gringo" is the usual nickname given Americans in Mexico. Guadalajara, a well-planned city of beautiful colonial buildings, fountains and ultramodern structures, is located 300 miles west of the Mexican capital. It has a population of 1.7 million.

The elderly Americans in Gringo Park are part of the estimated 15,000 retirees from the United States living in Guadalajara area, attracted by a good climate, cheaper cost of living and the appeal of living in a foreign country close to home.

Many of the retirees live in suburban areas in homes ranging in price from $50,000 to $250,000. For them life is peaceful and good.

But not for the Americans who gather daily in Gringo Park.

They are among the 700 or 1,000 retirees who live in cheap hotels rooms or apartments in the downtown area of Guadalajara.

Gabriel Romero, immigration department chief in Guadalajara, said they do not constitute a burden for the city because even if their income is low it is still more than most of the poor Mexicans in the area can boast.

ASTROLOGICAL FORECAST

By SIDNEY OMARR

Forecast For Tuesday

Favorites — past and present. My favorite Cancer: Merv Griffin. Favorite Aries, now and yesterday: Bette Davis, Harry Houdini and Jack Johnson. Capricorn great: Henry Miller. Leo who exemplify their sign: Mae West and Leo Burcher. Virgo who fits his sign perfectly: Peter Falk. Aquarian who charmed me: Kim Novak. Aquarian who praised me: Tommy Smothers. Piscean who made me aware of writing like walking on water: Anais Nin. Libran with an abundance of charm and intelligence: Jayne Meadows. Sagittarian with a lot to learn: John Davidson.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Break through restrictions is indicated. Problems will not vanish, but many roadblocks to progress could disappear. Gemini and Virgo figure prominently. Give full play to intellectual curiosity. Ask questions.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Your ability to forgive and forget comes to surface. Family situation will harmonize — but it depends on you. Be charitable! What seemed rash, brusque and unfeeling is, in actuality, an act based on lack of maturity. Be big — and forgiving!

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Take long-range financial view. What might appear a wealth could be a pig in the poke. Know it and act in responsible manner. There are persons who want something of value for nothing — at your expense!

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Cycle is such that you get your way. What was opposition is soon to melt. You deal with reasonable member of opposite sex. You also find that your abilities, talents are appreciated — and you will be empty compensated.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): You find ways, means of communicating with more persons more of the time. Aries, Libra individuals figure prominently. You successfully complete project. Behind you is one trying to catch up — and who sings your praises.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): New approaches are necessary. Romance and emotional involvement take bumps, bruises. You grow stronger as result but you would just as soon pass on the honor! Leo, Aquarius persons could be in your personal picture.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): What was suppressed now comes to light. You find who wants what — and why. You will be stronger as result of additional knowledge. Aquarius seems to be active in your behalf. Define ambitions. Be sure you understand your desires.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Diversity highlight versatility. Expand — broaden horizons. Sagittarius, Gemini persons could be involved. Accent is on potential, what could be and what you can do about it. You get aid from source behind the scenes.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): You get involved. Be sure you're not trapped! Means keep your eyes open. Intrigue is not a substitute for happiness. You could be fooling yourself into thinking otherwise. Aquarius, Leo, Scorpio persons may be in picture. Money might be a key, too.

APRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Lie low. Wait and observe. Others will show their hands. Then you can make definite move. Accent is on legal ties, contracts, partnership and marriages. Be analytical. Seek reasons. Get paper work in order.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): If dramatic, you get your way. Otherwise, others get their backs up and you create unnecessary friction, opposition. Taurus, Scorpio and Libra persons are in picture. Accent is on work, health, basic issues.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): See beneath surface indications. All that glitters is not gold — that cliché has special application. Someone may be trying to get something from you — for nothing. Emphasis is on emotional response as opposed to logic.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you are creative, impulsive, have tendency to be domineering. Leo, Aquarius individuals are drawn to you. In October, you will make beneficial changes — some will involve the opposite sex. You are colorful and people are aware when you walk into a room. If single, marriage is upcoming.

Above Northern's energy warehouse the corn grows tall.

Near Redfield, Iowa we're storing natural gas deep underground. During the summer and fall we pump the gas 3,000 feet below the surface, under dome-like rock formations. The rock below the dome is porous and holds gas like a sponge.

When the cold of winter comes and the demand for gas increases, we pump it back up into our pipeline for delivery to your home.

On the coldest days, over 12% of the natural gas in our pipeline system comes from the underground storage facility at Redfield. Enough gas to supply some 230,000 residential consumers.

Why Redfield? It's one of the few areas with the right kind of rock formations for underground storage. And it's close to our main pipeline so we can get gas to you quickly in the winter when it's needed most.

Meanwhile, 3,000 feet above our energy warehouse, the cattle graze contentedly and the corn grows tall.

Developing underground storage is just one of the things Northern is doing, and will continue to do, to keep that clean, efficient blue flame burning at your house. For heating, water heating, clothes drying and cooking.

Increase For Some Gas Proposed

The New York Times
Washington — The Federal Power Commission proposed Monday to let small producers of natural gas charge 50% more than the national ceiling price for large producers. The price is 43 cents per 1,000 cubic feet. The commission said it was not wedded to the 50% figure and might change it in its final order.

However, the figure was taken by some observers as indicating roughly how much the commission believes small producers' prices should be permitted to exceed the national ceilings for large producers.

The proposal was one of two actions by the commission to increase supplies of natural gas flowing to the interstate market, and especially to the upper Midwest and the east coast.

FPC Reverses Itself
In the second action, aimed directly at ameliorating this winter's expected shortage of natural gas, the commission reversed itself and reinstated so-called emergency and limited-term sales without price ceilings. It confined the emergency sales to 60 days, evidently because the legality of its extension to 180 days last winter is still under challenge in the courts.

About one-sixth of interstate natural gas supplies have come from some 3,600 small producers under a 1971 commission order that exempted small producers from regional price ceilings. The Supreme Court on June 10 held that the 1971 order failed to assure that small-producer prices would be "just and reasonable," as required by the natural gas act.

Accordingly, the commission, in a notice of proposed rulemaking, suggested the 50% standard. It argued that small producers' risks and costs are higher than those of large producers but it conceded that it had no statistical evidence to show how much higher.

Such calculations "would be self-defeating" because of the many complexities involved, such as allocating exploration costs between oil and natural gas, the notice said.

Higher Prices
John N. Nassikas, chairman of the commission, said in response to an inquiry that the proposal, if adopted, would give small producers higher prices than under the 1971 order.

"I don't know if it's a good deal more, because we haven't made that analysis yet, but it would be more," Nassikas said.

The commission said that giving small producers — those that sell no more than 10 billion cubic feet of gas a year — a higher price would promote competition by strengthening existing producers and encouraging newcomers to go into the gas business.

"The operations of small producers have historically and characteristically been centered around exploration and wildcatting," the commission said. "Wildcatting" is industry jargon for drilling in search of new fields, rather than in producing fields.

Therefore, the commission said, higher prices for small producers would lead to increased supplies of gas, which it called "protection of the consuming public."

Hour-Old Baby Found In Garbage Truck

DECATUR, Ga. (AP) — An hour-old baby boy was found in a garbage truck Monday by two workers who were about to activate the truck's trash compactor.

The two garbage men, Eddie Fletcher and L. C. Etheridge, said that when they heard a noise coming from the refuse, they sorted through the refuse and discovered the infant, wrapped in a towel and tucked in the bottom of a sack.

They tied the baby's umbilical cord and rushed him to DeKalb General Hospital in this Atlanta suburb.

Doctors said the boy weighed in at 8 pounds, 4 ounces and "was doing fine." They said he apparently was about 1 hour old when he was discovered.

Police officers said they traced the garbage bag to a nearby residential area and located a 15-year-old girl they believe to be the mother.

Maj. J. T. Stanley said the girl was found at a doctor's office where she had gone for treatment. The Decatur police officer said a court order had been issued giving custody of the child to the county department of family and children services.

He said the case was still under investigation and no charges had been filed.

Reporter's Materials Subpoenaed By Court

Long Beach, Calif. (UPI) — The Federal District Court in Lincoln, Neb., has subpoenaed all notes, tapes and documents of a story written in 1973 on the Wounded Knee Indian rebellion by a student reporter.

Tom Blackburn, 27, a law school student, wrote the story while working for the Cal State, Long Beach, newspaper.

He said he would fight the subpoena "all the way."

The subpoena was served by two federal marshals and a Long Beach police officer. It required Blackburn to submit the material before the Lincoln court Sept. 12.

The story resulted from a telephone interview with Roger Ironcloud, a Cal State student senator, who left school to join the rebellion at Wounded Knee.

The story won the American Newspaper Guild's best collegiate story of the year award.

Agency Helped In Developing Emmy Winner

The Nebraska Department of Education Instructional Television Services is a member of the national consortium that developed "Inside/Out," the Emmy Award-winning emotional health education series for 8-to-10-year-olds.

Chosen the 1973-74 winner in the Instructional Children's Programming category, "Inside/Out" is an all-color, 30-program classroom series dramatizing or documenting day-to-day problems and emotions of children from a child's point of view.

The Nebraska agency is one of 34 in the consortium sponsored by National Instructional Television.

Cook Predicts Fast Hearings

Louisville, Ky. (UPI) — Sen. Marjorie Cook, R-Ky., predicted that Senate Rules Committee hearings on whether to approve Nelson Rockefeller as vice president would probably be concluded within five days. He added that Senate confirmation proceedings could start as early as Sept. 16.

According to an ANG spokesman here, the guild and Reporters Committee for a Free Press, based in Washington, D.C., are supporting Blackburn.

"It's disappointing," Blackburn said. "You would think the present administration would not be following the pattern of press harassment that characterized the previous administration."

"I mean," he added, "what was all the shouting about? Nothing changed."

Fire Damage 'Considerable'

A kitchen fire caused "considerable" damage to the Don Rowley home, 2910 F, late Monday afternoon, District fire Chief Eugene Fenner said.

Fenner said Mrs. Rowley was melting wax to cover some jelly when the wax caught fire and spread to a waste basket and a curtain.

A window frame, a door frame, wallpaper and a stove were damaged by the fire, Fenner said, and the rest of the house sustained smoke damage.

Music news is covered thoroughly in the "Sunday Journal and Star."

N.Y. Cabs Use Silent Alarms To Help Fight Crime

EDITOR'S NOTE: Electronic advances will provide greater safety for cab drivers, passengers and the public. Jules Abend is manager of news operations for McGraw-Hill World News.

By JULES ABEND

New York — Silent alarm systems — standard for banks — are being used by fleet taxi owners in New York City as part of a program to fight crime-in-the-streets.

The system used by the fleet cabs has a dual capability. The digital — silent — aspect allows the driver to report in an emergency situation, without alerting anyone. The driver touches a hidden switch which automatically transmits a coded alarm, along with the cab's identifying number. The system logs in the driver's calls, so the dispatcher can determine the taxi's general location and send help.

In a more conventional way, the participating fleets, called the "Minutemen" also communicate by voice over a two-way radio to report suspicious happenings and crimes.

The New York taxi driver voluntary participants — more than 1,000 of them — have been trained by the New York Police Department. Presently, 1,200 cabs are involved. More than 300 have two-way radio and the silent digital printout equipment, designed by RCA.

Gerard Meister, a principal of Star Maintenance Corp., a fleet outfit, and a spokesman for the group, says that initially it was not conceived out of any feelings of altruism: "Without safe streets I cannot function and I don't operate a mill that I can move to North Carolina."

While the original intent was self-serving, the Minutemen are performing a community service. Since the voluntary reporting system was established more than 150 emergency "citizen in distress" calls have been relayed to police, resulting in numerous arrests, according to Meister.

This is how cabbies report by voice. "If a driver sees a crime in progress, he calls his dispatcher on a frequency that is open at all times. The dispatcher has a police precinct map which he uses to call the closest precinct or headquarters. The dispatcher can talk to the driver and the police keeping both parties informed.

The group has just created what it calls "visibility patrols," where a number of taxis, up to 10, will patrol blocks of stores that have been plagued by holdups.

"What we have done," says

Meister, "is to provide hundreds of additional eyes and ears on city streets as an aid to our police department."

How to win the fuel duel without choosing sides.

Natural gas is piped directly from the wellhead to your home.

And because it doesn't take much energy to move gas through a pipeline, natural gas comes into your home with 93% of its available energy. That's why gas is the best fuel for the big jobs such as heating your home, cooking your food, providing plenty of hot water, and drying your clothes. Natural gas appliances use less energy and cost less to use than comparable electric appliances operating on fossil fueled power.

Most electricity is generated by burning coal, oil, or natural gas.

These fossil fuels lose a great percentage of their available energy in the generation and distribution of electricity. As a result, only 28% of the energy found in those natural resources is delivered to your home as usable energy. But there are many jobs around your house that only electricity can do. For lighting and small appliances, it's the most efficient way to go.

Let natural gas and electricity work side by side in your home. But, use natural gas for the big jobs. Be sure to replace your old, less efficient appliances with modern, new gas appliances. You can't lose with efficiency and economy on your side.

Connors, King Gain 'American Double' At U.S. Open

FOREST HILLS, N.Y. (UPI) — Jimmy Connors destroyed a pitiful Ken Rosewall in the most one-sided final in U.S. Open tennis history Monday to win his third major grass court title of the year, and Billie Jean King made it an "All-American double" by defeating Evonne Goolagong to take the ladies crown for the fourth time.

In a repeat of their Wimbledon final, Connors scored an even more decisive victory, 6-1, 6-0, 6-1, while Mrs. King came from behind to defeat Miss Goolagong, 3-6, 6-3, 7-5. It was the Australian's second straight loss in the U.S. final as she was beaten by Margaret Court last year.

The last time the American men's tennis title had been decided by nearly such a lopsided score was in 1931 when Bill Tilden defeated William Johnston with the loss of only five games.

In 1881, the first year the tournament was played, R. D. Sears defeated W. E.

Glyn, also with the loss of only five games.

Monday's match was over within 88 minutes and the manner of Connors' victory was brutal. He allowed Rosewall, 39, four fewer games than he gave him at Wimbledon in July.

The final conquest was witnessed by Connors' fiancé, Chris Evert, and both Connors' and Evert's parents.

Connors, 22, opened the season by winning the Australian title and then followed with wins at Wimbledon and Forest Hills, but he was denied a chance of the Grand Slam when the French refused his entry because of his involvement in World Team Tennis. Connors has a $250,000 suit pending against the organizers of the Paris tournament.

Only Rod Laver in 1962 and 1969 and Don Budge in 1938 have won the four major tournaments in the same year.

Connors did not serve thunderbolts like the other power men in the game today, but he rarely missed a first ball, varied the pace and angle on his delivery and never allowed Rosewall to settle.

With one of his major weapons—return of service—blunted and his own service faltering, Rosewall was never in the match. When he did get the ball back, Connors was in position to make the kill.

The few times Rosewall appeared to have passed Connors down the line, he found Jimmy got into position to hit unbelievable winners down both wings. Rosewall, his green shirt dripping sweat, was reduced to shaking his head in dismay.

The match was so one-sided that Rosewall, who won the title in 1956 and again in 1970, won only 13 points in the first set, 11 in the second and 16 in the third. He held service twice, in the fifth game of the first set and in the fourth of the third.

Afterwards, Connors, who received a check for $22,500 to bring his 1974 winnings to $185,760, said, "It's the best tennis I've ever played. I thought I played my best at Wimbledon when I only allowed Kenny six games, but today was better."

Rosewall, who has won everything in the game but the Wimbledon title in 22 years of globetrotting, said, "Jimmy has the game and style to stay on top for many, many years."

Rosewall, who won $10,800, conceded it was probably the worst defeat he has ever suffered, but said he was not embarrassed to lose so badly. "Nobody likes to lose so badly, especially as it probably will be the last time I'll reach a major final."

What the men's final lacked in excitement and drama, the ladies final had in full and the crowd of 15,303 gave both girls a standing ovation at the conclusion of the match.

Ms. King, who has spent the last few years crusading for equal prize money for the ladies, nearly let the match get away, but in the end her greater experience got her through.

Billie Jean previously won the title in 1967, '71 and '72, while Evonne needed the Forest Hills crown to complete a full house of major championship victories.

The match fluctuated throughout its three sets and the outcome was in dispute until Evonne, 23, hit a forehand long in the 12th game of the third set to end the match.

The third set had opened with Evonne racing to a 3-0 lead, but Billie Jean, 30, then won the next three games to square the set. Games then went with service until the ninth when Evonne was broken to 15.

Billie Jean, who includes five Wimbledon and one Australian, French and Italian crowns to her credit plus that celebrated victory over Bobby Riggs last September, now came out to serve for the match. She lost her service at love.

But in the 11th game, two errors by Evonne put her behind and then Billie Jean hit a volley in virtual self defense when Evonne rifled a crosscourt at her, and pushed the brake with a forehand crosscourt.

Given a second opportunity to wrap up the match, Billie Jean made no mistake and served a love game.

One break, in the fourth game, gave Billie Jean the edge in the second game, while Evonne broke to 4-2 in the first set in an eight-deuce game which Billie Jean surrendered with a doublefault.

Billie Jean, like Connors, earned a check of $22,500 to bring her season total to $101,000. She also received a car, a ring and a wristwatch, as did the men's winner. Evonne received $10,800 to bring her 1974 total to $49,130.

Yankees Win, Gain Top Spot

By The Associated Press

The New York Yankees regained sole possession of first place in the embattled American League East Monday night by defeating the Boston Red Sox and snapping an 11-game losing streak in Fenway Park.

New York triumphed 6-3 with the help of 13 hits and took advantage of three Boston errors to score two unearned runs. Chris Chambliss and Elliott Maddox each drove in a pair of runs for the Yankees.

Against the Red Sox—who fell out of first—winner George "Doc" Medich, 18-12, got relief help in the eighth inning from Sparky Lyle.

It was the first victory in Boston for the Yanks since July 1, 1973, and only the second in 22 games dating back to the 1972 season.

In other American League games, Cleveland downed Detroit 7-1. Minnesota beat Chicago 3-1 and Baltimore edged Milwaukee 6-5 in 11 innings.

Opening a pair of West Coast doubleheaders, Oakland blanked Kansas City 3-0 and California defeated Texas 4-1 in the first games.

In the National League, Los Angeles bombed Atlanta 8-1, Cincinnati downed San Diego 8-3, Philadelphia blanked St. Louis 2-0, New York downed Montreal 7-1. San Francisco edged Houston 8-6 and Chicago beat Pittsburgh 9-4.

Baltimore beat Milwaukee in the 11th after Bobby Grich singled and later scored on Tom Murphy's wild pitch. The victory pushed the Orioles into a second-place tie with Boston in the AL East.

Cleveland's Dick Bosman, 6-3, gave up just three Detroit hits. Oscar Gamble hit a two-run homer in the first inning for the Indians.

Minnesota's Harmon Killebrew hit a two-run homer in the eighth inning and Steve Braun added a solo blast to defeat Chicago.

Oakland's Vida Blue, 15-14, fired a two-hit shutout against Kansas City in the first game of their two-night doubleheader.

California's Chuck Dobson, 1-0, making his first 1974 start, downed Texas on seven hits in the opener of their twinnings.

A three-run homer by Ron Cey and a two-run homer by Steve Garvey gave Los Angeles the victory. Rookie left-hander Geoff Zahn, 3-4, allowed four Atlanta hits and pitched his first complete game.

Homers by Tony Perez and Dave Concepcion in a four-run fifth-inning helped Cincinnati past San Diego. The Reds remained 3½ games in back of Los Angeles in the tight National League East battle.

Philadelphia's Jim Lonborg, 15-11, tossed a two-hitter. Lou Brock of St. Louis was thrown out at second base in the sixth inning while trying for a major league record-tying 104th stolen base.

Winner Ray Sadecki, 8-7, of the Mets scattered eight Montreal hits and contributed a run-scoring single in the fourth inning.

San Francisco got past Houston with the help of Gary Matthews' two-run double in the eighth inning and Dave Kingman's two-run triple.

Despite the loss, NL East-leading Pittsburgh is still 2½ games ahead of the Cards. The Cubs got a two-run double from Jerry Morales and homers from Jose Cardenal and Andre Thornton.

Yankees' Craig Nettles scores as Boston Red Sox catcher Bob Montgomery drops the ball after taking the throw from right fielder Dwight Evans, on a hit by New York's Chris Chambliss, at Fenway Park in Boston. The Yankees won 6-3.

Trevino Victory Ends Akron Drought

AKRON, Ohio (UPI) — The Firestone Country Club drought is over for Lee Trevino and it came just in time for the merry Mexican to defend his PGA title there next year.

Trevino, who had insisted in the past he could not play the long, 7,180-yard Firestone layout, captured the 13th annual World Series of Golf and $50,000 Monday in an extension of the sudden death playoff with Gary Player which was suspended after five holes Sunday night because of darkness.

Player and Trevino both finished the regulation 36 holes with one-under-par totals of 139 and matched par for five extra holes before PGA Tour Director Jack Tuthill ruled that it was too dark to continue and play would resume at 10 a.m. Monday.

On Monday's first-extra hole, the sixth of the playoff, the two players both birdied.

Player hit his second shot on the 410-yard par four 14th hole some 10 feet to the right of the cup and pin high, while Trevino, knowing Player was well within birdie range, hit the center of

Clements Propels Irish, 31-7

ATLANTA (AP) — Notre Dame didn't exactly resemble the defending national champions of college football Monday night, but Coach Ara Parseghian sounded a warning to anyone with designs on the crown.

"I think we're going to be a pretty solid team," Parseghian said following slow-starting Notre Dame's nationally televised 31-7 triumph over Georgia Tech.

"We'll get better as the season progresses. The team began to shape up in the second half with the grind-it-out type offense. That's what we want."

The Fighting Irish were embarrassed when their defense was shredded for a touchdown before the offense touched the ball. But the passing and running of slick quarterback Tom Clements plus a brilliant goal-line stand helped Notre Dame rally.

"I'm immensely pleased with the way our team played after that shocking start," Parseghian said. "I was worried about conditioning, playing a road game and playing a team with a new coach."

on a one-yard run by Wayne Bullock and an eight-yard dash by Al Samuel.

Clements, who played almost the entire game, completed 10 of 14 passes for 170 yards and carried 12 times for 50.

Notre Dame, a four-touchdown favorite, had its defense ripped apart at the start by a fired-up Georgia Tech team. The Yellow Jackets, whipped to fever pitch by the unpredictable Rodgers and cheered on by the hometown crowd, took the opening kickoff and methodically stormed 68 yards in 14 plays.

With Notre Dame crowding six and sometimes seven men onto the defensive line against Rodgers' Wishbone attack, the Yellow Jackets went to the air and Rudy Allen completed three passes for 31 yards including an eight-yard scoring toss to Jimmy Robinson.

When Notre Dame finally got the ball, Clements passed 21 yards to Demmerle on the first play but the drive fizzled and the Irish punted to the Tech seven-yard line. But whereas Tech's scoring drive lasted more than 6½ minutes, its second possession blew up after 41 seconds when sophomore David Sims fumbled and Notre Dame linebacker Drew Mahalic recovered at the Tech 14.

Notre Dame's Al Samuel (24) gains short yardage before Georgia Tech's Eddie Porter brings him down.

Player, despite being considered a master of the sand game, came out of the bunker some 13 feet short of the hole.

Trevino had hit his tee shot onto the green about 30 feet past the hole. He left his first putt some three feet short, but, in an attempt to put added pressure on Player, took the option to putt out and got his par.

Player, who on both of Monday's extra holes was bothered by something in the surprisingly large gallery of 2,000 which turned out to see the abbreviated play, missed his 13-footer, ending the match.

Trevino, in explaining his strategy of putting out on the final hole, said, "I wasn't about to let him putt before I putted my three-footer. If I make mine, it makes his a lot tougher. But if he makes his first, it would have made mine longer."

Trevino, who had only two fourth place finishes and a tie for second to show for his three previous appearances in the World Series, which annually brings together the winners of the Masters, U.S. and British Opens and the PGA, said the victory would definitely help his outlook toward the Firestone course, "especially since, the PGA will be here next year."

The other two entrants in this year's event, host Firestone pro Bobby Nichols, who got into the series by winning the alternate Canadian Open, and U.S. Open champion Hale Irwin, never really threatened.

Player and Trevino both finished the regulation 36 holes with one-under-par totals of 139 and matched par for five extra holes before PGA Tour Director Jack Tuthill ruled that it was too dark to continue and play would resume at 10 a.m. Monday.

On Monday's first-extra hole, the sixth of the playoff, the two players both birdied.

Player hit his second shot on the 410-yard par four 14th hole some 10 feet to the right of the cup and pin high, while Trevino, knowing Player was well within birdie range, hit the center of the green about 35 feet from the cup.

But Trevino was up to the task and rolled in his long birdie putt to put the pressure squarely on the shoulders of the intense little South African.

Player, after being distracted by someone in the gallery and stepping away from the ball, knocked in the putt to prolong play one more hole. The Masters and British Open champion picked up $15,000.

Starting Lineups Set For Season Opener

By BOB OWENS
Star Sports Editor

Starting lineups are set, barring injuries this week, for Nebraska's 1974 football season opener Saturday in Memorial Stadium against Oregon of the Pacific Eight Conference.

There are no surprises and only one player is missing from the alignment that started pre-season practice back on Aug. 19. He is Dave Shamblin, junior split end, who has been sidelined for the season because of knee surgery.

Coach Tom Osborne said sophomore Bobby Thomas is considered the first stringer in Shamblin's place, but that Ritch Bahe would be used at the position "to keep everybody fairly fresh."

Bahe, regular wingback last season, will see action at both positions against the Ducks with Don Westbrook also playing wingback at times.

"Thomas deserves the chance to be considered the first stringer," Osborne said. Thomas also will be used on kick returns.

Playing two positions will be no problem for Bahe since the duties of the spots are the same on many plays. "Both he and Westbrook have good hands and we know they'll block downfield because of their experience," Osborne said.

Freshman Monte Anthony, who has been learning signals at both I-back and fullback, and split end Darrell Walton are two freshmen who probably will see action.

Anthony, star of the Shrine All-Star game last month, probably will alternate at No. 2 fullback with Gary Higgs.

Defensively, there are only two switches from the way the teams lined up at the opening practice. John Lee has moved ahead of Willie Thornton at middle guard and Mike Fultz has replaced Stan Waldemore at No. 1 right tackle.

Four players who have been hobbled by minor injuries returned to full duty Monday and will be available Saturday.

They include linebacker Tom Roud, co-captain, defensive tackle George Mills, offensive tackle Steve Hoins, and linebacker Larry Young.

Kicking assignments will go to Randy Lessman as the punter with Al Eveland the likely kickoff man and Mike Coyle set for punts after touchdown. That situation still could change by Saturday, according to Osborne.

Ray Phillips, junior college transfer at defensive end, will be ineligible this season because of a grade-point deficiency, Osborne said. "We hated to lose him because he was doing real well. He's 6-4, 220, with real fine speed and quickness."

Senior Chad Leonardi, who was given a try at middle guard after being an offensive guard, has decided to drop football, Osborne said.

He also listed four players he would prefer to redshirt this season, but they're being prepared to play with the second or third units. "They'll be redshirted if there are no injuries ahead of them at their positions," Osborne said.

They are Ken Spaeth, sophomore tight end, Lindsay Kucera, sophomore fullback, Kent Smith, sophomore defensive back, and Tom Davis, sophomore center.

The two-deep for Oregon:

Sports Signals

By Bob Owens
Star Sports Editor

Everybody's Ready To Play

Coach Tom Osborne put it best when he said he's tired of talking about Nebraska's potential and how the Cornhuskers may or may not play. "We want the season to start so that we can quit guessing and start doing," he said. His players, the fans, and even the sportswriters are ready for a game.

As a final pre-season bit of guessing, I put together the top 20 list of predictions in the 12 various magazines, newspapers and wire services and came up with a deadlock for the national championship between Ohio State and Notre Dame.

It is interesting to note that had the United Press International's coaches poll voted Oklahoma No. 1 instead of omitting the Sooners altogether, Coach Barry Switzer's team would have been the choice.

The Sooners ended up fourth with 206 points, based on 20 for a first place vote, 19, 18, etc., and those points would have put them at 225 compared with 218 each for Ohio State and Notre Dame. Alabama wound up third with 215 points.

All told, 34 teams were mentioned in the top 20 lists.

Rounding out the top ten consensus were Southern California 190, Michigan 162, Nebraska 151, Louisiana State 149, Penn State 145, Texas 129.

The second ten: Houston 117, UCLA 80, Maryland 76, Pittsburgh 53, Arizona 50, Arizona State and Tennessee, 43 each, Texas A & M 33, Georgia 27, Florida 25.

The third ten: Missouri 24, Texas Tech 21, North Carolina State 20, Arkansas 19, Stanford 18, Miami of Florida 17, Auburn 8, North Carolina 6, Tulane and South Carolina, 5 each.

Others getting votes were Memphis State 4, Kansas, Wisconsin, and Iowa State, 2 each.

Miami of Ohio Wins Again

Miami, the Ohio school which has turned out so many top-notch coaches over the years, just keeps on winning no matter who the head man might be.

The Redskins, whose latest contribution to major college coaching is Bill Mallory at Colorado, rolled to a 39-0 victory over Eastern Michigan last Saturday for their 13th victory in a row.

The new coach is Dick Crum, who was the main architect of Miami's defense the last four years during which time Miami never finished lower than sixth nationally in defense.

Other notes around the college football scene:

Pete Elliott, the former Nebraska coach who now coaches the "other" Miami, the one in Florida, thinks the Hurricanes will be better than last year when they upset Texas in the season opener and scared the pants off Oklahoma before losing. Miami opens at Houston Sept. 21.

Paul Dietzel, another of the former Miami of Ohio products, coaches at South Carolina now and thinks he has the best college quarterback he's ever seen. His name is Jeff Grantz. "He does the impossible," Dietzel says. "I have seen quite a few quarterbacks in my 20 years as a coach, but he is by far the finest athlete I have seen in college."

Pacific Eight Conference Skywriters have voted 28-3 that Southern California will nip Stanford for the championship. Others in order were UCLA, Washington State, Oregon State, California, Oregon and Washington.

A poll in the Southwest Conference has named Texas by a big edge over Texas A & M with Arkansas third and Texas Tech fourth. Bringing up the second division were SMU, Rice, TCU and Baylor.

Play Aids Atlanta

Denver (AP) — Tom Hayes admitted he was surprised as much as anyone. Charley Johnson probably doesn't even remember it.

On the opening play of the fourth quarter, Hayes stepped in front of Denver receiver Bill Van Heusen, picked off a Johnson pass and raced 62 yards along the sidelines for a touchdown, lifting the Atlanta Falcons to a 20-14 victory over the Broncos in the final National Football League preseason game for both teams Sunday night.

It was disclosed later that Johnson had sustained a mild concussion, probably on Denver's previous possession, which might explain his erratic throw.

Denver coach John Ralston's biggest concern was a rash of injuries, the most serious being a broken ankle to running back Bob Anderson, a former Colorado standout.

Praise 'Bothers' Sooners' Switzer

KANSAS CITY (UPI) — Talking about going undefeated before you ever play a game can turn a college football coach's stomach. And that's the current predicament of Oklahoma's Barry Switzer.

"It's always good to be recognized," Switzer said Monday. "But you never know until Saturday how well you can play. Last year nothing much was expected from it. This year it's entirely different."

Oklahoma, like all other Big Eight schools, opens play Saturday. The Sooners host Baylor. Elsewhere, Iowa State is at Texas Tech, Tulsa at Kansas State, Wichita State at Oklahoma State, Colorado at Louisiana State, Oregon at Nebraska, Kansas meets Washington State in Spokane and Missouri plays Mississippi at Jackson.

Deadline Nears For Registration

Registration for the Jaycee-National Guard Junior Basketball League for all boys in the 7th and 8th grades will be from 7 p.m. to 8 p.m. next Tuesday at the east door of the Nebraska National Guard Armory, 1776 N. 10th.

The league will be coached by University of Nebraska and Nebraska Wesleyan University physical education majors and will consist of eight teams. Team play will be Tuesday evening of each week at the armory with practice beginning Oct. 29 and the season ending March 25. Fourteen league games will be played in addition to tournament play.

Parents should accompany their boys when registering.

and Missouri play night games. Switzer said he would not be out to run up scores, although some of his players have been quoted as saying that's the object this year.

"That's the kind of thing that bothers me," said Switzer, who took the Sooners to a 10-0-1 record in his first year as head coach. "I'll always be happy to win, 7-6. But, like against Baylor, we're playing a team that we're supposed to beat by four or five touchdowns."

"I'm not going to try to run up the scores. I'm hoping to play as many people as possible. If the subs score a lot, that's different."

Nebraska, the team that's supposed to give Oklahoma the most trouble within the Big Eight, opens against what Coach Tom Osborne calls "one of the two or three finest defensive teams we'll see all year" in Oregon.

Bill Mallory at Colorado has perhaps the most rugged opener of any Big Eight coach. He'll take his Buffaloes against LSU in Baton Rouge.

"From what I can tell," said Mallory, "LSU is as good as they've been for a while. They've got big, strong, mobile people. And playing in Baton Rouge ought to be quite an experience."

Missouri's Al Onofrio, who lost his top two quarterbacks for a time with ankle injuries this fall, said both Ray Smith and Steve Pisarkiewicz will be ready to play against Ole Miss.

"They're a little behind in their conditioning," said Onofrio, "but the way they scrimmaged Saturday and with this week's work, they won't be very far behind."

The Big Eight combined for a 27-7-1 record against non-conference foes last year.

Kearney Hosts Scrambler Open

Kearney — The Nebraska Scrambler Open Golf Tournament is set for the Kearney Country Club on Sept. 21-22 with entries open to amateurs and professionals from Nebraska and surrounding areas.

Teams consist of four members. Each player hits a tee shot. Best shot is selected and each player hits a second shot from that lie.

Best shot is selected each player hits or puts the third shot. Procedure is followed until ball is holed out.

Entry deadline is Sept. 18 or when first 35 teams enter.

Judge Rules Wagering On Game Of Skill Illegal

By GERRY SWITZER
Star Staff Writer

Poker and bridge may be games of skill, but don't bet on it!

A Lancaster District Court ruling handed down Monday stated that wagering or betting in or upon the outcome of a game is illegal under Nebraska Law.

In the case brought against Lancaster County Atty. Paul Douglas by Indoor Recreation Enterprises, Lancaster District Judge Dale Fahrbruch held that the issue was not whether the games were games of skill or games of chance but whether betting or wagering on any game is a violation of the law.

Indoor Recreation Enterprises, which is owned and operated by John Long as the Golden Cue Family Recreation Center at 1907 O, had sought injunctive relief against prosecution for alleged violation of the state's gambling laws and a declaratory judgment that the games of bridge, poker, chess and checkers provided at the center were games of skill rather than games of chance.

Wagering Prohibited

Judge Fahrbruch said that the clear language of the law involved prohibits the act of wagering or betting money or property of value upon the outcome of the game in any public or private place unless specifically exempted.

The court ruled that while it is true that chess and checkers may well be predominately games of skill, they are included in "any game," "any game whatever," and "Any game whatsoever" under the statutes, and betting or wagering upon the outcome of any game is a violation.

According to the memorandum opinion handed down by the court, the plaintiffs argued that due to social change and/or attitude, the court "should permit that which is clearly prohibited by law."

"Such change is properly within the province of the legislature and the voters, and these would not be invaded by judicial fiat," Judge Fahrbruch stated.

He noted that although there was no evidence in record, the plaintiffs' counsel argued that others may be doing what plaintiffs did or propose to do.

"In substance, counsel argue that plaintiffs should be permitted to violate the criminal laws with immunity," he said, noting that such an argument is "unsound upon any theory in an orderly society."

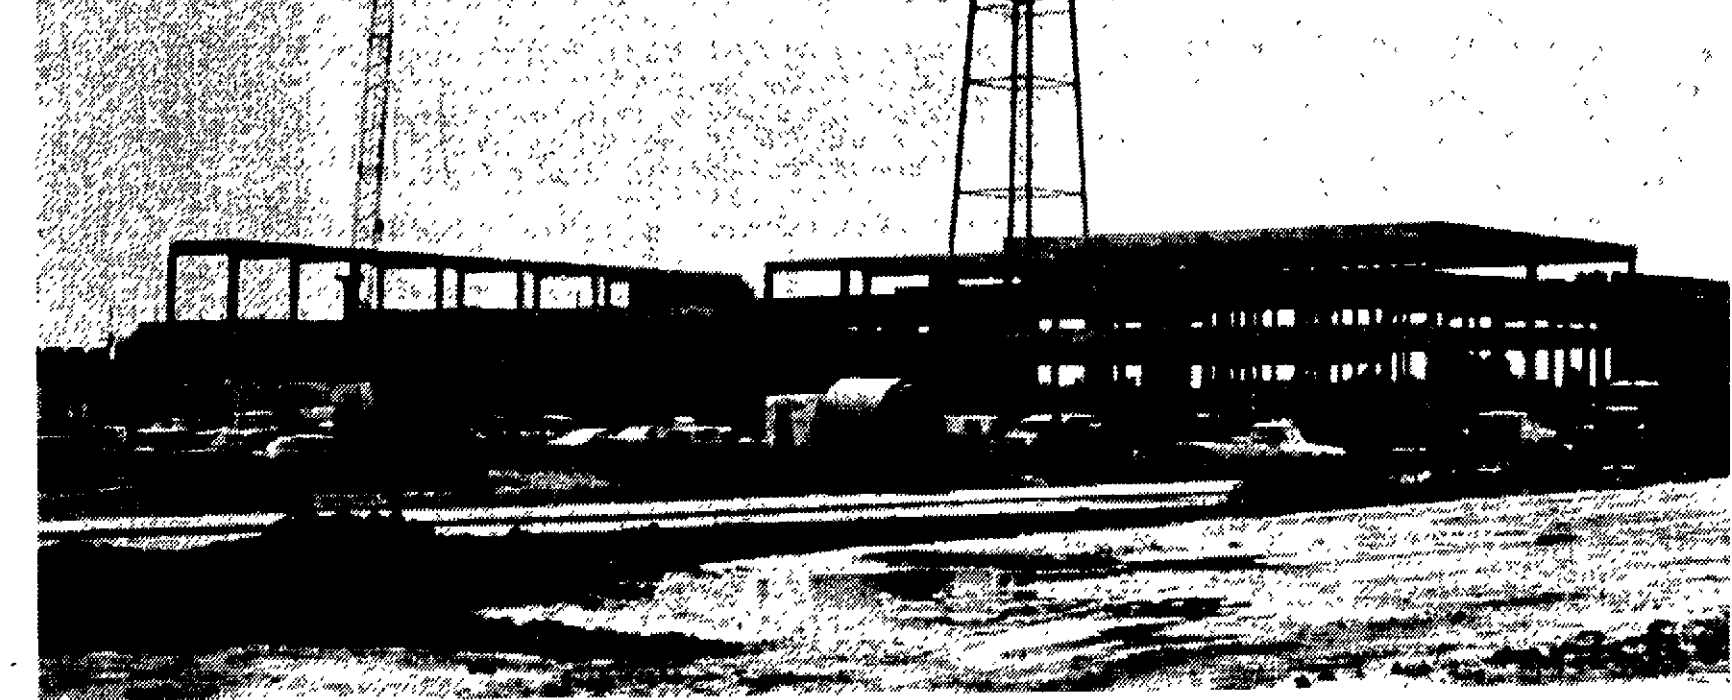

"Prosecution under our governmental system is vested in the executive branch and there it should reside. Just because someone may be violating a criminal law without prosecution is no reason for the judiciary to ignore the plain language of the statutes," he said.

The court refers to the testimony of the plaintiff's expert witness, Oswald Jacoby, who said that an expert at cards must play with a person six hours before the so-called skill of the expert becomes a substantial influence in the winning of money.

'Result of Chance'

"The only conclusion that can be drawn is that even with experts playing in card games, wins or losses on individual hands of cards during the first six hours are the result of chance," the judge said.

"But, even accepting at face value the expert's opinion that after six hours of play, skill is the dominant element, such opinion is not based upon the number of quality of the individual hands of cards won or lost, but rather upon the amount of money won or lost, which in essence refers to the skill of betting or wagering and not to the skill of playing each individual hand of cards."

SUN Learning Center Officially Opens

The State University of Nebraska (SUN) Learning Center in Lincoln will officially open its doors Tuesday, according to coordinator Curt Siemers.

Located in the Nebraska Center for Continuing Education, 33rd and Holdrege, the center will be open from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays; 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. Tuesdays and Thursdays, and 9-11 a.m. Saturdays during September.

"Later, the center will adjust its hours to best accommodate SUN students from the Lincoln area," Siemers said.

He also announced that Karan Mooberry has been named assistant coordinator of the Lincoln center, one of four established this fall in Nebraska in connection with SUN's first multimedia college-at-home courses.

The center houses a resource library for information on all post-high school learning opportunities for adults in the Lincoln area.

Resource materials also include all instructional components of each of the courses SUN will offer. Siemers said SUN course enrollees will be able to progress either faster or slower through a course by viewing videotapes of the ATV lessons at their convenience.

Siemers said the center's principal activity during the remainder of September will be to serve as a location for registrations for people in the Lincoln area.

Registrations are also accepted at the sun office in the Educational Telecommunications Center, 1800 N. 33rd.

Siemers invited anyone from the Lincoln area or people from outlying areas to visit the Lincoln center this month to become acquainted with its location and resources.

Siemers, 48, is a Nebraska native who took the newly established SUN post while on leave from Winona (Minn.) State College, where he is a speech professor.

An Omaha South High School graduate, Siemers took his undergraduate work at the former University of Omaha and his masters and doctorate degrees from the University of Nebraska.

Siemers previously served on the teaching and administrative staffs of Omaha South and West-side High Schools, Dana College, the University of Omaha, NU, and Kearney State College.

He also served on the Minnesota Metropolitan State College planning committee, which established a program like SUN aimed at serving people who cannot take existing postsecondary education programs.

Assistant coordinator Mrs. Mooberry has a master degree from NU and was formerly on the staff of SUN Development director Milton J. Hassel.

The Lincoln Learning Center is located in the lower level of the former Youth Wing in the Nebraska Center.

SUN converted two floors of the Youth Wing to offices to house SUN academic administration, research and evaluation, production services and course production staffs.

Remaining in the Telecommunications Center are the SUN offices of general administration, business and finance, delivery system administration and regional planning.

Nebraska Center Director Clinton A. Hoover said one floor of classrooms and one dormitory floor have been retained for youth program use.

SeTech Thought Obligated To Assist Penal Complex

Southeast Nebraska Technical Community College (SeTech) Area President Robert S. Eicher said Monday the college has an obligation to participate — if asked — in educational programs at the Nebraska Penal Complex.

all the obligations we have as a community college."

But "We'll only get involved if we're requested to do it," he said.

Eicher said he's had preliminary discussions with the prison staff, but only in providing input on evaluation of penitentiary education programs. "Some of the things I saw were very good."

Funding for SeTech programs at the penitentiary, Eicher said, could be:

—Part of the penal complex institutional budget, with a specific amount earmarked for education and cooperative planning.

—Or an adjunct to the SeTech budget in a category much the same as is granted to fund each of the college's three campuses at Fairbury, Lincoln and Milford.

Eicher said although some inmates on work-release could enroll in SeTech Lincoln campus programs, much of any program that would be established "would have to be done in the (penitentiary) facilities."

Woman Challenges Refusal Of License

Kearney (AP) — A Kearney woman has filed suit in Buffalo County District Court challenging a State Liquor Con-

Mrs. Loretta Hadlock, owner of the Kountry Kitchen, is challenging the Aug. 19 ruling which stemmed from a Kearney City Council recommendation that the license not be granted.

The action filed by Attorney Andrew McMullen said the 2-1 council vote recommending the denial was invalid.

McMullen, who also is Buffalo County attorney, said the ordinance requires a majority of the council's five elected members to approve such an issue.

When the vote on the Hadlock license took place, one councilman was absent and another abstained.

McMullen contends the 2-1 vote should not have been accepted as a recommendation.

The council's denial of the Hadlock application marks a change in city policy. Previously the council had approved all applications on the ground a "supply-demand" market situation would control the number of establishments selling liquor.

North Platte Man Dies

North Platte (AP) — A one-car accident just west of Maxwell on Highway 30 Saturday night has claimed a second life.

Roland J. Halouska, 31, of North Platte died Sunday in a local hospital from injuries received in the crash, according to the State Patrol. He was a passenger in the car.

Another passenger, Ronnie Stubbs, 28, also of North Platte died shortly after the crash, officials said.

The driver of the car was identified by the State Patrol as James L. James, 21, also of North Platte. He escaped injury.

Woman Killed In 2-Car Crash

Valley — A Fremont woman died of injuries suffered in a collision Sunday near here.

The Douglas County coroner said Mrs. Luella P. Adams, 67, died of a broken back.

Sheriff's deputies said she was a passenger in a car driven by her husband Walter, also 67, when it was struck by a car driven by Dennis H. Diesterhaupt, 30, of Omaha.

Cattlemen Meet In Hopes Of Winning Higher Prices

Sioux City, Iowa (AP) — Approximately 2,000 Midwest cattlemen have committed themselves to a series of proposals through which they hope to bring about a price of $48 per hundredweight for choice steers.

Saturday night's Iowa market crisis meeting was called "to bring stability to the cattle market. Above all, we must keep our tempers, although we have a lot to be angry about," Iowa Cattlemen's Assn. President Waldo Mommensen of Clinton told participants.

The cattlemen resolved to meet again the first week of October if conditions warrant. They made it clear that the $48 per hundredweight price is still at least $12 below the cost of production.

cattle prices can absorb a price for live cattle at the feedlot well in excess of $50 per hundredweight without any retail price increase.

The cattlemen expressed appreciation to American consumers for their continued support in buying beef.

Topper Thorpe of Denver, Colo., general manager of Cattle Fax, said that for the last 16 months the cattle industry has suffered continued losses and as a result the number of cattle in feedlots has declined.

Thorpe quoted the current price at $42 to $43 per hundredweight.

Holmes Pedely, chairman of the Iowa Governor's Task Force on Beef, said cattlemen destroyed their own market earlier this year by flooding it. He called for "smart" marketing of cattle.

Frost Did More Damage Than Originally Thought

By United Press International

Crop losses from the Sept. 3 frost apparently were worse than first thought, the State-Federal Division of Agricultural Statistics said Monday in its weekly crop report.

Irrigated corn, which was more mature than dryland corn and other row crops, seemingly was hurt the least, the division said.

Damage was most extensive in lowlands.

The division said irrigated corn is in fair to good condition throughout the state and dryland corn is in mostly poor to fair shape.

Much drought and frost damaged corn is being cut for silage. About 90% of all corn is in or past the dough stage and about 70% has dentied, the division said.

The frost also dealt another blow to sorghum in several areas with 26% of the counties reporting poor conditions, 60% fair and 14% good, the division noted.

More than 95% of the sorghum has headed and about half has turned color.

Other division comments:

— Soybean conditions declined from a week ago with the crop poor in 18% of the counties, fair in 64% and good in 18%. About 95% of the beans have podded.

— Wheatseeding is lagging slightly with only 10% of the crop sown. Progress has been best in the Panhandle.

— Alfalfa condition is about the same as a week ago with approximately 85% of the third cutting completed.

— The dry edible bean harvest is expected to be progressing well by this weekend and yields are expected to be good.

— Range and pasture feed supplies are short in 89% of the counties reporting but have been improved by August rains.

— Herds are being culled and cattle are being moved to winter range. Supplemental feeding continues statewide.

Rainfall received throughout the state during the past week, according to the National Weather Service, included:

Chadron ..... .09 North Platte ..... .02
Grand Island ..... .02 Omaha ..... .05
Imperial ..... .05 Scottsbluff ..... .11
Lincoln ..... .06 Valentine ..... .07
Norfolk ..... .07

Precipitation via sections since the beginning of the growing season, April 1, as compared to longtime averages follows:

Tuition Said To Vary While Yet

By DICK HOLMAN
Star Staff Writer

University of Nebraska-Lincoln Chancellor James H. Zumberge expressed doubt Monday that UNL in the near future will charge out-of-state students the same tuition rates Nebraska residents pay.

But "I wouldn't be surprised," he said in an interview, "that ultimately we'll see tuition differentials disappear entirely, on a general situation in the United States."

Meanwhile, "I've been asked by a number of alumni who now live out of Nebraska" if the university could lower the tuition for their sons and daughters from $48.50 per credit hour to the $18 resident rate, he said.

Legality Questioned

"I don't know whether the regents could set a differential based only on being children of alumni in the university," Zumberge said, also questioning the legality of the idea.

Zumberge commissioned the UNL Student Affairs office to study what effect a standard charge would have on the university's tuition income, but "I haven't pursued it at all" recently, he said.

"It's not a serious proposition that I'm ready to take up with the regents," the chancellor said.

"I tend to view the idea, while sympathetic with the alumni, as least negatively from the point of view of the university."

He pointed out that of the total UNL student population, only 10% are non-residents, but the loss of the difference in their out-of-state tuition charges could be substantial.

In a hypothetical example, if 2,000 non-resident students each took 15 credit hours, each student would pay $727.50 for tuition that semester. (A resident student would pay $270.)

If out-of-state tuition were lowered to the resident rate,

UNL would lose $457.50 per non-resident student registered, or a tuition loss of $915,000 in a single semester.

"The whole philosophy behind this idea" of differentiated tuition, Zumberge said, "is that the taxpayers of the state of Nebraska should subsidize their own citizens. Students from out of state should pay their own way."

But the move to eliminate differentiation is "now front and center," the chancellor said.

The State College Board of Trustees on Saturday voted to recommend that tuition for resident and non-resident students be the same. The board will ask the Legislature for $315,000 to pay for the reduction on a four-year pilot basis.

"We'll eventually get something together," Zumberge said, adding that "out-of-state tuition is almost voluntary except for the first year" anyway.

Federal and state laws allow a

Tax Reappraisal Goal Said Equity

The goal of updating and maintaining a reappraisal is equity, Southeast Nebraska County officials were told Monday.

State Tax Commissioner William Peters said that the public will still complain about taxes but they "won't fight about it" if there is equalization between property values.

Outlining the steps toward achieving the equity goal under provisions of the state's new appraisal manuals, Peters said that updating by counties until now has been primarily picking up values of new property and catching some of the changes.

"This isn't updating," he said, noting that that is not the best that can be done.

The state, for many years, Peters said, has blamed the counties for the inequity problems but didn't provide any support or assistance.

"Now we can provide some meaningful assistance and help," he said. There is much

Here is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It's a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.
